The Truth You Can't Handle

A lot about altered perception is talked about in this as well as other essays written by myself over the past several years. While maintaining that there is but one reality, I stress that what runs the show now and for a very long time past is but one particular take on that reality, and a very incorrect one, I should add right away. Also, within these lines I take pains to point out the terrible trouble which usually results whenever those holding absolute power are found to be laboring under false perceptions.

Altered perception, again. That of the mainstream which is led away from the truth of the matter by their overlords who control the media. And then that of the extraordinary few who, for whatever reason, will bolt from the "herd" and strike out on their own path. Who's right? Does being in power and authority automatically make any adopted course "correct" simply by virtue of the ability to ram-rod it through or to artificially paint it to be the way one wants it? Does the fact that a belief or an attitude may be held by the broad billions of the earth automatically make it "truth"? Conversely, just because the rest seems to be wrong, does assuming a radically different stance in defiance render one's position "right"?

The easiest thing of all is to become lost. And again, the amount of zeal and determination that may be behind that only serves to compound the condition, not to make it "right". Longevity together with the never-ceasing ability to learn and to grow seems to me to be the only hope. And a slim one it is at that. With all due modesty, I think I've been fortunate in these areas. These essays and what they contain are the product.

My own version of "right" and "wrong" brought me into inevitable conflict with the so-called "law" the way it is written and understood - and enforced - by the mainstream. As I've written in another chapter of another book, my "crimes" were two-fold: Saying "yes" to life and saying "no" to degeneracy. As simple as that but the alien bureaucracy would have it otherwise and this resulted in several years within the System's prison and parole apparatus. A major blessing as it turned out as the period saw my best work appear. Certainly an environment of incarceration may be expected to produce a condition of altered perception to an extreme degree.

However, my record going back some three decades caused concern for my keepers and they, out of their sheer lack of understanding, could only react by placing me in maximum security. That much the better for the only purpose which could now be served. Then, as my moment for mandatory release on parole drew close and they realized their grip was going to slacken, once again from a lack of any real understanding or discretion, they wrote into my conditions of parole "no contact with extremist groups".

Of course, their holding me illegally and unconstitutionally in maximum security for two years on this same pretext and no other had not dissuaded me for one moment from maintaining my work and my contacts and, certainly, having to perhaps "look over my shoulder" now just a bit to circumvent the parole order was not going to, either. I do believe yet that it is not how you play the game that counts, it is whether you win or lose. And as long as I never allowed them to move me from my chosen course, despite their going the total length to abuse their usurped authority, I ultimately could not lose and they could not win. An example of "altered perception" of what actual power really is, perhaps.

As an expedient, so as not to make it too easy for them once I was back on the street, I chose to adopt the pseudonym "Robert Burns" for purposes of writing and corresponding even before I left confinement. Immediately prior to leaving prison, the first Burns

Dear Comrade;

It was a real delight to receive your recent letter. Sorry it has taken us so long to answer you letter but I have been working on the translation on the Bible for the past thirty years and made a vow that I would complete the New Testament by October 1st. Well, thanks be to Almighty God we achieved our goal and can now bring the truth to the people. All that remains is for us to do a little more proof reading and we can start the printing and binding.

It made us very proud to hear that you "cut your teeth" on the Patriots Guide and the tape Germany and the True Story of the Third Reich. It has been estimated, even by the enemy, that in excess of 5 million copies have been spread around the world in the last 30 years. First by reel to reel tape, then by tabloid newspaper and now for the last 15 or 20 years on 90 minute cassette. We are looking forward to producing the Third Reich tape on video in the future.

We enjoyed your samples very much, keep up the good work and we are more than happy to keep up an exchange with you. Please find some samples of our current productions.

Great to hear from another "old" fighter.

Yours in the Service of Jesus Christ,

articles began to appear in movement publications and, most notably, on the website which was at that time still new. The whole object was and remains the conveyance of thought. Names and titles are utterly unimportant.

It was the winter of 1996-1997 when, as part of one day's routine mail call while I was at the state penitentiary, a letter of friendly greeting came in from one total stranger going only by the initials "B.W.R.". Along with the short note a few stamps had been enclosed thoughtfully but, as per prison policy, they hadn't been allowed to come up to me. (Might contain "LSD" or something.)

As always, I immediately acknowledged the letter and thanked the person for the gift of the postage. (The stamps would be waiting for me in my property when I left on parole later that year.) Meanwhile, a new exchange of correspondence had begun. Very soon B.W.R. put the question to me: If he and a few friends would establish a site on the Internet, would I write for it? Certainly, and of course.

There ensued a quick discussion by mail as to the approach to be used in designing material for this site. We would naturally want to turn people on and not turn them off. The conveyance, once more, of facts and ideas that perhaps had not occurred to them as yet, and not the typical "rock 'em and shock 'em" style of the more standard "extremists". It would not be, "Look at us. We're extreme.", but instead, "Look at this. Your world out there is extremely wrong."

Our mutually formulated strategy for the site was to "hook" the interest of readers by leading with titles dealing with paranormal phenomena, etc., and injecting along with that a more traditional line of movement thought. It seemed to work and we were off and running by the summer of 1997.

Utilizing an old masthead of mine, Universal Order, we set about to attract the attention of the average "surfer" of the Internet with a most timely piece from out of the news titled appropriately, "The Fallacy of Heaven's Gate". Friends outside who maintained publications kept me in print regularly which was both gratifying and heartening. Those same publications, when sent back in to me at my request, weren't allowed in due to their "inflammatory" nature. One more fine example of the utter insanity of the enemy system. They did, however, turn up on my monthly evaluation reports and served to provide them with more plausible excuse to continue to hold me in maximum security or, as they put it, "administrative segregation", as some perceived security threat.

That was fine as I needed all the time I had to accomplish what I had to do. As it was, I had to push to generate a large enough body of work to keep the new website fresh and growing because I knew I'd soon be out on the street and – due to the matters of dealing with daily life – largely unable to produce then as I had been these past months.

As it turned out, even before I left prison in September of 1997, my new friends were informing me that the site was becoming a success, with increasing "hits", a growing number of "regulars", and with e-mail pouring in from around the world. That last one by itself was so encouraging that we had no difficulty in deciding to establish a regular feature on the site just to answer our e-mail.

The three weeks I initially was out on the street, as I had suspected, I was able to do no creative writing whatsoever. Daily living usually precludes this even in the case of one such as myself who rigorously eschews "regular employment". Just getting set up and arranged took all my time. And, just as I had about made that hurdle, the waiting parole authority swooped and re-arrested me on a variety of thoroughly bogus and outrageous "violations". Apparently, I hadn't completed my work and now was being afforded this extra opportunity to do so.

Arising out of a combination of paranoia, incompetence and corruption that I have come to expect as par for the course with all these people, but, at dead bottom, with the object of causing maximum personal disruption in attempt to kill the resolve of the individual, my days were now occupied – back at the county jails where it had all began three years before – in mastering the disruption, mounting a respectable defense, and resuming my writings with, as far as I am concerned, more quality than before.

After four months of intensive effort, the loyal aid of close friends and associates, as well as the uncanny luck I've come to expect, we were able to "lead them into the valley", as it were, and in their own kangaroo court make them look like exactly what they were and are and regain freedom, albeit back on parole.

It now seemed that everything coming from my pen was of a religious nature. Former publishers now were beginning to back away from my work due to this "imbalance" but there was still, and primarily, the website.

Actually, it had been as a direct result of my having come to incarceration in the first place, beginning in the summer of 1995, the product of a so-called "plea agreement" and a conviction on a charge of "felony menacing", bringing a sentence of three years with two years extra of mandatory parole, that I had begun my career as a religious zealot. My previous forty-two years of life had been spent as an avowed and militant atheist. Simply put, the unique occasion allowed me to see clearly, using the background I had already gained, through a reading of the Bible that it was all, indeed, right there. All summed up right there. As unmistakable as it was shattering.

During the winter of 1997-1998 which was spent at the Pueblo County Jail, among many other entries was written a twelve-part series on the Bible itself entitled, "One-Verse Charlies". The formula was simple: A good friend which I had made at the jail had given me another Bible; I took it one page at a time, annotating as I went those verses which were taboo to mainstream, Judeo-Christianity or which otherwise were misunderstood; Then, returning to the start, I fleshed out the annotations with my own narrative. The result is here, presented in the upcoming chapters.

The working title, "One-Verse Charlies", stemmed from those really "nowhere" verses that the lack-luster mainstream churches like to bore their respective congregations to death with. The reaction I was soliciting was to be, "Is THAT in the Bible?" The end result was, to my amazement, something that had never been done before: A meat-and-potatoes literal condensation of the entire Bible.

When one does something well, he knows when he's "hot". Most of the time, while at work writing, I honestly didn't care that I was locked up. While doing the "One-Verse Charlies", I was compelled to utilize a steel desk and a steel stool, both bolted to the wall and the floor, completely immovable, and with only a few inches of height difference between them. The resultant lower back pain became so acute that I found myself dragging my left leg and unable to stand up straight. Despite that, I could not stay away from the desk and from writing. This was a gift, among other things, and was not to be delayed for any reason and, thus, quite possibly lost.

The patterns emerging even as I worked were shocking and disturbing, to say the least. Shocking and disturbing even to me, not because I had been previously unaware of them, but because I never guessed they'd be found there in the Bible, hidden, as it were, out in the open. A personal catharsis, nothing short of that.

Previously willing to go up against "God" or "Christ", if necessary, should what these churches represent them as be accurate, and to follow my own inner voice, backed up as it was by facts demonstrated to have been suppressed by the most dark and ruthless world conspiracy. Now to find that I had been in the vanguard of service to God all along. Make of it what you will. To me it was nothing short of transforming.

The chapters speak for themselves. Thirty years of being immersed in movement philosophy – damned as it was by the whole world – more than willing to cut loose any tradition or institution that was not in line with that (and that was all of them), now to find it staring back at me from out of the pages of the Bible. As I had entitled one earlier piece, "Can There Be Any Mistake?" No. As far as I was and still am concerned, there is absolutely no room for mistake here.

I was knocked breathless more than once.

For you the reaction may not be the same. For the few who will be reading from a sympathetic, movement standpoint, this will come as something curious and possibly enlightening. For the rest, the newcomers, there'll no doubt come some form of "reasoning", "logic", dismissal or plain stone-walling that will prevent this from making the impression that it, by rights, ought to make. Neither camp can be expected to be substantially moved from their own pet, private take on "reality".

A couple of simple questions need to be asked when confronted by information of this sort. Is it real or is it bunk? I mean, is the Bible itself real or is it all indeed "Jewish fable"? If it's nothing but fable, after all, it certainly can and should be dismissed. Because – and this leads directly to the next question – accepted as Jewish fable the way it has been now and for a very long time, has it in any way led to a desirable state of affairs in the world, especially insofar as the White race is involved? I say this: If it isn't fable and if there stands reality behind the myth, we'd better come to a full understanding of that reality just as quickly as possible. Doubly so if we find that there has been any amount of deliberate misrepresentation of the Bible's message.

Altered perception. What you are holding is the product, one of them, of the prison sentence handed to me – innocent of those charges – by the weasels in the pay of the Beast System (even though they themselves are too small to even begin to realize it as such.) Everyone plays a role. Everyone is an instrument. The difference is struck by those few individuals who are cognizant of this and who are able to come to an appreciation of both the purpose and the means to its end.

This work is dedicated to that thought.

In the fall of 1999, our website was terminated when the original provider was taken over by some company which had a so-called "anti-racist" policy. Thought control. The site had a terrific two-and-a-half-year run and reached countless thousands of people. They will automatically know the power that took it away without being told. Bits and pieces of this website were to still be found as late as January of 2018.

That reality constitutes the very truth that most can't handle.

Whether you or anyone else can or cannot handle this truth doesn't matter very much to me. Take it or leave it. I knew that I had to bring it forth and present it, first on the Internet and now here, in hard copy. There is where my own responsibility ended.

The final secret to all of this, if you haven't already guessed, is that I am "Robert Burns".

Part I

As a small child of elementary school age, I always rose early on Saturday mornings to catch the cartoons on television. And on Sunday mornings I'd also rise early so as to be able to watch the religious programs: "Church by the Side of the Road"; "Look Up and Live"; "The Christophers"; "Bishop Fulton Sheen", etc. I can't really recall now exactly what drew me to these things but something must have. It wasn't too long before I outgrew them and turned my back completely on all that. But, apparently, a great many never do.

I became an atheist at a very early age and, though I familiarized myself with all of Madalyn Murray O'Hair's type of material, I never belonged to that variety of atheist. Because I, by the time I entered my teens, had been drawn like magic to the mystique of Adolf Hitler and this placed me well off in one camp while the atheists of the O'Hair mold, along with the religionists of the mainstream kind were – amazingly enough – off somewhere in bed together philosophically. Same philosophical line, same worldview. Only one with a God and one without. Two sides of the same coin.

Could it be that someone was and still is perpetrating a scam?

From 1966 through to 1970 I immersed myself in the study of Hitler's National Socialism as well as in revisionist history, all of it having been gleaned from volumes gotten by mail via sources unknown and unavailable to the general public. Having literally stumbled upon this "rabbit hole" leading to a worldly dimension which most are oblivious to, I learned of a hidden reality painstakingly concealed by some secret power.

As the Bible says, don't forget the first love of your youth. Mine will always be the saga of the Third Reich. There is my grounding and it has proven to be an unfailing means of balancing and weighing everything I've since come upon in life. Each time I've broken through onto a new level of truth and awareness, that same youthful sensation of thrill and excitement has been born anew within me.

My anchor in truth. "Hated by the world". What better credentials could one ask?

Already by 1969, I'd come across a group calling itself "N.C.N.", or National Christian News. They offered a tape entitled, "Adolf Hitler and the True Story of the Third Reich". This man, Dr. Oren Fenton Potito, carefully drew a Biblical parallel between the ministry of Jesus of Nazareth and the career of Adolf Hitler. It was all most interesting and impressive but I was, after all, atheist and fully committed to the American Nazi Party, headquartered then in Arlington, Virginia, where the official stance was to affect a political reform similar to that done by Hitler in Germany.

Then came two occurrences during 1970: First, from a bookseller in New York I secured a copy of a new and controversial volume called, "Chariots of the Gods", by Erich von Daniken; and, second, through my political activities and travels, I met in northern Ohio a minister named John A. Crites. Von Daniken made a compelling case for the inspiration of the miraculous doings in the Bible having been the work of extraterrestrials in ages past. Crites brought in his own persuasive argument that the Bible is a document of, by and for the White race only and that, far from being "Jewish", it condemns and warns against the Jews. And, privately, Crites himself would agree that "God" was actually a race of extraterrestrials while von Daniken, after he had daringly blazed the trail for others to follow, was being called a "racist" by many of these newcomers.

Here the groundwork was laid leading me stumbling toward a critical connection.

Certainly, two books that everyone has heard of are the Bible and Mein Kampf. Yet these are at the very same time two books that practically no one ever really reads. Funny how it is in great good taste to have a Bible out in view somewhere in your home but in extremely poor taste to ever delve too deeply into it. And who is it that can't tell you all about what Hitler says in Mein Kampf – as told to them by the likes of William L. Shirer, Alan Bullock, etc.?

Through the Seventies and Eighties I held to a steady diet of political effort, tending always toward the more radical all the time. Though, in 1975, I issued my "Work of the Lord" poster which united Hitler and Jesus in appraisal of the Jews, and then again, in 1977, my "Those Mine Enemies" poster with Hitler fulfilling Biblical prophecy, I considered them both to be no more than just neat tricks of propaganda. Though I'd be foolish to try to deny that, surely, something was trying to creep through at these times, it had all yet to "snap" for me.

One corresponding acquaintance of mine during 1977, Pastor Glenn Wheeler of Rough and Ready, California, sent me a minister's certificate in his "Christ's Identity Church". Quite a novelty for me, I thought at the time, and I even went so far as to reproduce a replica of it in the newsletter I was editing at the time. Then it was filed away and practically forgotten.

At some point in the early Eighties I saw and heard one movement old-timer, Kurt Saxon, express his conviction that to the mess the world now faced there was no political solution. And, of course, well before that time, as of the mid-Seventies, Joseph Tommasi had declared, "the White man has lost!" Between insights such as these together with my own agonized examination as to precisely "why" behind all of this, I was, by the time I faced a serious term of incarceration in the mid-Nineties, finally ready to read it and see it on my own.

Almost as though none of these previous exposures had even taken place, it leapt out at me from the pages of the Bible just like bolts of lightning. Probably a matter of the sufficient background and maturity coupled with an environment tailor-made for altered perception to come into play. All those "political parties", all those "political programs", all that effort, all of it going nowhere. Every bit of not only your own struggles and aspirations, but those of the dominant, all powerful Enemy System, being overtaken by events themselves.

Somewhere in this realization had to be a message contained for the astute. It was exactly as Saint Paul had said: Those things had been fine as a training ground when I was young, impulsive and dumb, when the circumstances themselves as yet were not mature. But now I was an adult, the times were ripening, and it had come the moment to put childish things away. Indeed, as Paul further went on, previously I had been fed upon milk. Now I was ready for a steak.

To focus on a moment in time, even on an entire century, and suppose you can work to change the tenor of that in political terms is to miss the point by a mile and to place yourself hopelessly within the "junior league". Besides, it just doesn't work. Witness those running around even today, looking like Jesus or looking like Hitler. Perhaps well-intentioned but without any grasp of the way reality moves. Saddest of all, totally irrelevant.

The moment had arrived to give the credit where it is due in my on-going evolution toward the truth. The same blind, unerring instinct that first brought me to Adolf Hitler in the mid-Sixties also had brought me to Charles Manson by 1980. And, again, though strangely enough, I'd created my "Independent Genius" poster featuring Manson also in 1977, I considered it at that time to be no more than a propaganda prank.

The significance of the close personal relationship with Manson that developed during the early Eighties served to provide the bridge necessary which allowed me to cross over from narrow political considerations and to "Universal Order", exactly as Manson suggested I re-name my efforts. As Manson said, "the truth is one" and is a lot broader than the old movement suspected or let on. To me this was incredibly wonderful and exciting news but most of the movement rejected it just as they rejected Manson himself. "Is he a member of any of our organizations?" Precisely as with such a case as any of these modern-day churches barring a bearded, sandaled and robed Jesus at their door and inquiring of him, "Are you a member of this congregation?" It's a matter of the smallest of minds having come to dominate an effort.

People tend to place form ahead of function and thereby lose all sight of purpose and meaning.

"Hated by the world."

The "One-Verse Charlies", in whose hands lies the direction of the Christian Church, have been doing a criminally negligent job of ministering to the "lost sheep". As one who has been there and as one who has asked it of others and had it reconfirmed to him, "Does any of this mean anything to you?", or, better still, "Does any of that help

Jesus said to the Jews:

"Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar, and the father of it."

you in any real way?" the answer that invariably comes back is, "No."

And there is the justification for an arrogant Jew, the likes of Karl Marx, to charge that it is all nothing more than "the opiate of the masses"... and for him to be believed. All "show, blow and go". Just exactly the way some of us more radical types had begun to refer to our own reactionary meetings, etc., within the movement are these typical Sunday morning church services. Nod to a few meaningless cobbie-gobbies, drop some money in the plate, then go home just as subject as ever to the actual influence and power which belongs solely to the Satanic, World Beast System.

Why do you never hear any of THIS in church? Rather than the commonly known "apple" nonsense, the immediately subsequent verses instead: "And I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed;" Also, "Unto the woman be (God) said, I will greatly multiply thy sorrow in conception; in sorrow thou shalt bring forth children; and thy desire shall be to thy husband," Genesis, Chapter Three, Verses 15 and 16. Now we can begin to see the basis for the original sin: Inter-racial, sexual cross-breeding. At last we have something that may enlighten and guide us.

Every child in Sunday school knows that Cain killed Abel. An anecdotal fact which in itself means nothing. But what of the next couple of verses? "And Cain went out from the presence of the Lord, and dwelt in the land of Nod, on the east of Eden." Furthermore, "And Cain knew his wife; and she conceived," Genesis, Chapter Four, Verses 16 and 17. We are popularly taught that Adam and Eve were the first people in the world. Who were the inhabitants of this "Land of Nod"? What were the descendants of this mixed seed of Cain?

Are these fair questions or just in awfully poor taste?

They teach that the flood of Noah came about because the world had "become violent". But violence is a constant thing. Again, no instruction here. How about the preceding verses? "And it came to pass, when men began to multiply on the face of the earth, and daughters were born to them," "That the sons of God saw the daughters of men that they were fair; and they took them wives of all which they chose." And, "when the sons of God came in unto the daughters of men, and they bare them children," Genesis, Chapter Six, Verses 1, 2 and 4. Only then comes Noah, described as being "a just man and perfect in his generations". Genesis, Chapter Six, Verse 9. A certain theme and pattern quickly develops, becoming louder and clearer all the time.

All this nonsensical business of mere "belief" or "faith" in some dogma as being the only important thing among these churches when, in fact, God told Noah following the flood, "And behold, I establish my covenant with you, and with your seed after you;" Genesis, Chapter Nine, Verse 9. Now, simply believing that an exchange like this took place and understanding what the words MEAN are two different things. This directly implies BLOODLINE, exclusive of any religious persuasion.

So much of Genesis is allegorical and its origins are dimmed with time. But certainly something very dire happened involving the third son of Noah – Ham – whose own line ended up cursed, "a servant of servants", who was the father of Canaan. Genesis, Chapter Nine, Verse 25. And you may be sure it had nothing to do with the polite language of him having "seen his father's nakedness" as told in the Bible. Genesis, Chapter Nine, Verse 22. This is about as deceptive as the "apple". Later on in the Bible, the Israelites are forbidden to intermarry with the Canaanites. Direct reference once again to the maintenance of pure blood lines.

People learn by rote the names of the patriarchs: Abraham; Isaac; and Jacob. But they learn practically nothing of the terrific jeopardy in which the legacy of the covenant teetered. Abraham at first had a son by an Egyptian servant – Hagar – whom he named Ishmael, and who was to become the father of the Arabs. Genesis, Chapter Sixteen, Verses 3, 4 and 11. Only later was Isaac born of Sarah to carry on the line. The verse goes on to state that the HOLY SEED will in future be called after Isaac's name. Genesis, Chapter Seventeen, Verse 19. This would correspond to "Isaac's sons", or "Saxons".

Interrupting this comes the tale of Sodom and Gomorrah. God sends his "scouts" – angels who can't be distinguished from the rest of the populace – to investigate and confirm whether it is as bad there as the reports have indicated. The place is overrun by homosexuals who make the mistake of accosting the two angels who are the guests of Lot. The angels first strike blind the army of homosexual attackers and then, after getting Lot and his family out of the city, they cause the whole place to be "nuked". Genesis, Chapter Nineteen, Verses 1, 5, 11, 13, 24 and 25. So much for "tolerance" of so-called "alternative lifestyles".

Returning to the patriarchs, Abraham beseeches his eldest servant, "that thou shalt not take a wife unto my son of the daughters of the Canaanites," "But thou shalt go unto my country, and to my kindred, and take a wife unto my son Isaac." Genesis, Chapter Twenty-Four, Verses 3 and 4.

Isaac, through Rebecca, had Jacob and Esau. All fable aside, Esau, though the firstborn, ends up going off to marry "Judith, the daughter of Elan the Hittite," "Which were a grief of mind unto Isaac and to Rebecca". Genesis, Chapter Twenty-Six, Verses 34 and 35. These Hittites were an offshoot of the Canaanites. Modern research confirms that the Canaanites were of a percentage of Negroid blood. One more mixed marriage and the line of the covenant must continue through Jacob.

At one point Jacob's name is changed to Israel by God, meaning "A Prince Ruling With God". Genesis, Chapter Thirty Two, Verses 25 through 28.

"And Isaac called Jacob, and blessed him, and charged him, and said unto him, Thou shalt not take a wife of the daughters of Canaan." Genesis, Chapter Twenty-Eight, Verse 1. Clearly, just as history shows, the fathers were existing within a multi-racial society where such danger was constant and immediate. A direct parallel with ourselves and our times is inescapable just as is the warning.

Through four wives, Jacob – now Israel – produced twelve sons, each one of these founding one of the Twelve Tribes of Israel. One daughter – Dinah – "the daughter of Leah, which she bare unto Jacob, went out to see the daughters of the land." While fraternizing with these "soul sisters", Dinah was raped by some of the "soul brothers". This time Hivites, more of the Canaanites. Genesis, Chapter Thirty-Four, Verses 1 and 2. A proposal of race-mixing on a massive scale was offered to Israel and his sons – a most generous and "democratic" offer – but, in response, the sons of Israel laid waste to the Hivites, killing every male. Genesis, Chapter Thirty-Four, Verse 25.

Attention is paid simultaneously to the doings of Esau, now referred to as the father of Edom, a people related to modern Turks, by wives taken from among the Canaanites. Though related in this way to Israel, Edom is the blood enemy of Israel and this is to remain a heavily recurrent theme henceforth in the story of the Bible. Genesis,

Chapter Thirty-Six, Verse 43.

Still more close calls: One son of Israel – Judah – had two sons initially by a Canaanite woman. God struck them both down in their youth. Genesis, Chapter Thirty-Eight, Verses 2 through 10. At length, Judah produced via his intended daughter-in-law – Tamar – two sons, Pharez and Zarah, from which would descend the royal line of the House of Israel: The House of David.

(Zarah would produce two sons also – Darda and Calcol. Calcol would found the line of Irish kings. Darda would found Troy, thus giving his name to the Straits of Dardanelles. Following the defeat of the Trojans by the Greeks, they left the area to found Britain – which name in Hebrew means "Land of the Covenant" – and also to become its kings. The "Red Hand of Ulster" symbolizes Zarah's disappointed claim to the birthright of Judah which passed to Pharez. The "One-Verse Charlies" of today ought to know this and impart it to their congregations here so that they might know the full measure of their own heritage.)

Genesis ends with another of Israel's sons – Joseph – and his travels within Egypt. And it is here where fable ends and literal history picks up.

Part II

Although there's no doubt everything contained within Genesis is based in truth, it is ancient beyond comprehension and, thereby, has largely assumed the aspect of myth or fable. However, two critical themes should be obvious from the very outset nonetheless: One, the paramount importance of racial integrity and; Two, the extraterrestrial source of it all. If I am wrong in this, then it contains no meaning whatever and can and should be dismissed.

So many of the world's "Creationist" religions bear such striking similarity that the reasonable person is led to believe inevitably that they all descend from one common event, or one common truth. Theory has it that the Greco-Roman gods are but variations on the patriarchs Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, etc. Other theory says that they all are but mythologized remembrances from actual, living kings and queens from lost Atlantis.

We know beyond any doubt that Genesis was taken and heavily abridged from Sumerian records which, when studied in their entirety, leave no question as to the human experience on earth having been the result of an extraterrestrial DNA colonization with some sort of mutiny having taken place a la the "Mutiny on the Bounty" where some of the colonizers fell in love with the native women and jumped ship.

This being so, it pushes man as we know him along with his civilizations back a lot further than the five or six thousand years allotted to him by today's history. It now, for example, has been established that the Sphinx of Egypt must be at least fourteen thousand years old by virtue of the heavy water erosion evident upon it and the time when the climate of that area saw that much rainfall.

Dear James,

Thank you very much for your letter.
 Please describe your view to me. Did you see such beautiful wildflowers as we in the Rockies. Did you to Oway + Grand Junction.
 How interesting that the Swift - Rockwell meeting recalled that far. It's best a lot of people. They was probably only intrigued by Wesley's gifts.

I'm glad that you love good music. It is such an important part of life. Elsie Greer has a talented organist for a teacher. They gave me some tapes that consist of high concentration + only him playing old melodies. I put them on at bridge when I go to bed.

Don't the Jakobak's witness to ask when you

I'm glad that you know Ralph Soles.
 But spring winds are letting up soon. By mid June it usually turns hot.

My niece plans driving her mother + me to Paradise 8 or 9 hrs. north the visit relatives. We try to go annually. They have received a lot of

May God bless you,

Letter to the author from the widow of Wesley Swift

It might even change the location of the Garden of Eden itself. Theorists of one school favor the Tarim Basin of western China as the site of the great flood of Noah. I myself find the myth of the destruction of Atlantis approximately ten thousand years ago to be positively compelling as both timing and location are concerned.

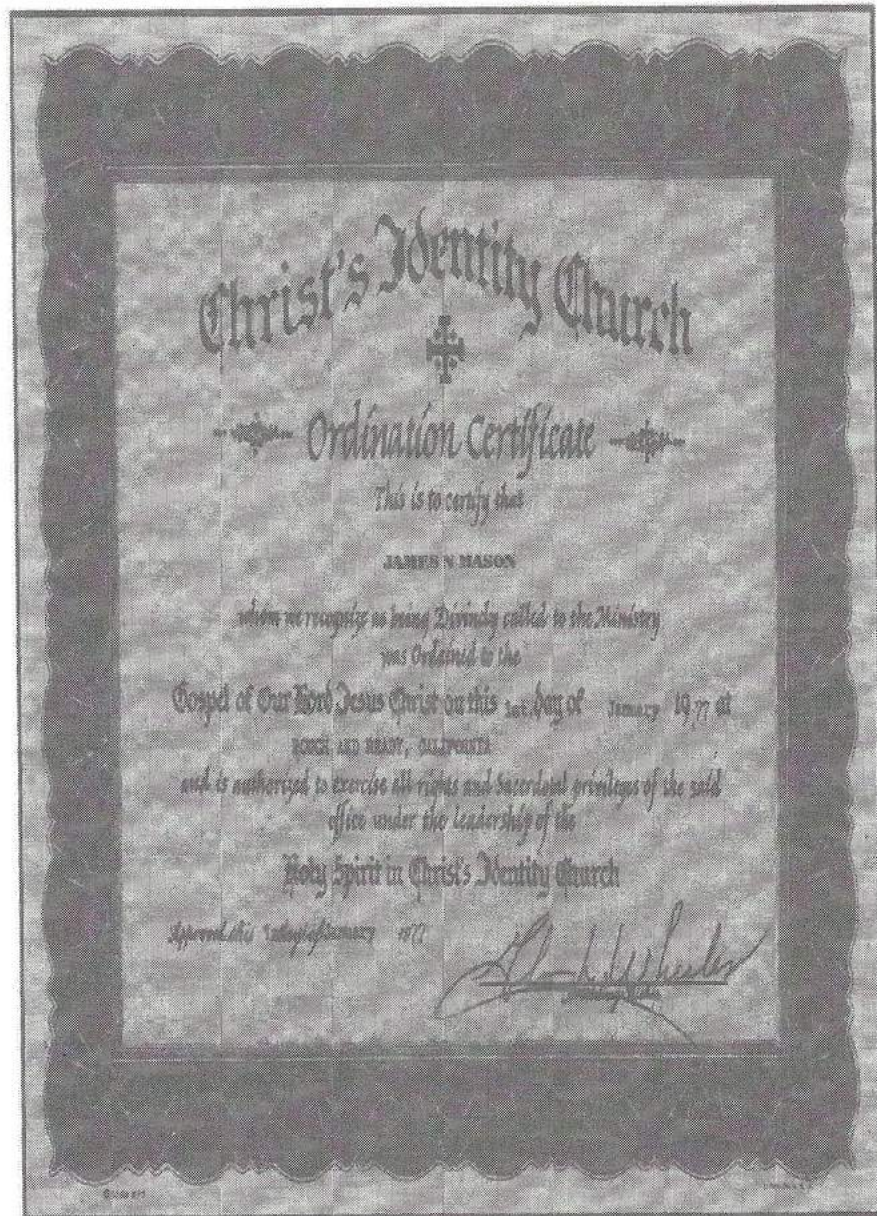

None of this should be disturbing as it only tends to make better sense. It still all remains an object lesson in man's extraterrestrial origins and concerns itself only with the fate and fortune of the Aryan race. Principles are what matter in anything, not details of minutia which people like to get lost in and which are so easily twisted.

The previously mentioned Sumerian cuneiform tablets, only discovered and translated within the past one hundred years, set the date of this first visitation by extraterrestrials and their mutation of man from out of apes at five hundred thousand years ago. And, rather than an "Adam and Eve", there was an Adamic colony of five thousand individuals. "Adam" itself being a physical description meaning the ability to go red in the face or to blush. Others have extrapolated onto this that one cannot blush unless they possess a conscience. Higher humanity.

Still-living legends among peoples surrounding the Atlantic Ocean tell of a great, lost homeland, of White gods, etc., and would place the location of this mythical place on Plato's Atlantis, long since lost to volcanic activity and to rising sea levels. American Indians place this homeland – in their languages variously "Aztlán" or "Atlaua" – to the east. Ancient Egyptians, Greeks, etc., place it to the west. In short, it rested exactly where Plato said it did: Just outside the "Pillars of Hercules", in mid-Atlantic.

The Hopi Indians, who claim the Swastika just as did the Aryans of ancient India, maintain that the four rotating arms of the cross represent the four major world migrations from off of Atlantis.

The earliest traces of Cro-Magnon man – a being totally indistinguishable from ourselves today – date to thirty thousand years ago in Western Europe. This would also have been during a period when major geological upheavals were disrupting an already breaking-up Atlantis and quite understandably may have triggered mass migrations to places of safety. By ten thousand years ago, the final destruction of Atlantis would have coincided with the end of the last Ice Age.

As a cornerstone of its world empire, Atlantis had had as its earliest colony Egypt. Evidence reveals that Egypt did attempt to step in and hold together this far-flung trade empire for as long as possible before it all went down in a dark age of superstition and racial amalgamation. The Egyptian gods, Thoth and Set, correspond directly to the Christian Jehovah and Satan.

The people of the Bible – Hebrews – gained their name from an antecedent of Abraham's named Heber, or Eber, which in itself means "Colonizer". To the Egyptians they were the Hapiru. Even earlier they were the Hyksos, or "Shepherd Kings". The Egyptians themselves credit these Hyksos as having been the ones responsible for building the pyramids. The Enoch from Genesis supposedly was the one who directed this work which would have been prior to the flood of Noah and is theorized to have been for the purpose of anything from a geodetic marker to a library in stone of what would later, under the tutelage of Moses, become the Bible.

These Hyksos, or Hapiru, or Hebrews would have been the direct remnant of the original Adamics, or Atlanteans themselves. The Aryans who had founded Egypt in its beginning and may have constituted its majority at one point. Over the millennia things deteriorated to the point where one racially and culturally sound Egyptian priest, Moses, about the year 1300 B.C., decided to take action to save what was left of his people from pollution of mind, spirit and ultimately of their very blood in the only way possible: They'd have to break out of the dying world of Egypt.

Armed with all of the wisdom contained in the Great Pyramid and apparently with the technological capability to communicate directly with God via the Ark of the Covenant, Moses organized the Exodus.

To understand his times and the situation that he faced, we have to look no further than our own circumstances. The United States today is the modern equivalent of Egypt and Babylon in the respect of the role they played in the world of their time: Supreme in might and prosperity but having become culturally and spiritually degenerate and a racial death-trap. Here in the present time we have our own Separatist Movement which postulates the U.S. Northwest as the only viable location for racial survival apart from the rest of the country which is itself committed to a course of death. Just as with Moses and his party, we can only take steps to see that we don't die with the rest.

The province of Canaan was in the extreme north-east of the realm controlled by Egypt. And so it was much more like the forcible capture of a segment of the existing nation than the "escape" as portrayed in the Bible. We can thus appreciate the pharaoh's opposition to this move: Imagine, the best and most valuable segment of the population proposing to leave and take a state for itself, to secede, thus precipitating a national disaster and possibly even a collapse. We see what routinely happens to our Separatists today: They are hunted down and murdered by the Federalists of the Beast System. Except that Moses enjoyed God's direct intervention, his effort might easily have been thwarted.

From out of the burning bush, God had called to Moses and appointed him to his task. When questioned by Moses, he announced his name to be, in Hebrew characters, "YHWH". Or Yahweh – "I Am That I Am". A statement in itself, transcending "belief", it simply means THAT WHICH IS! That which is real and eternal, the truth. The laws of nature and of physics. Become ignorant of these, vary from these, rebel against these and you are certain to die. Exodus, Chapter Three, Verses 1 through 14.

God assured Moses – already then a man in his eighties – success in his seemingly impossible task. Moses attempted to beg off, citing a speech impediment – possibly a stammer – which might prevent him from being an effective leader of the people. And so it fell to Moses' brother, Aaron, to do most of the talking. Exodus, Chapter Four, Verses 10 through 15.

The story of all the various plagues visited upon Egypt which finally convinced the pharaoh to allow the Israelites to go is well-known. Exodus, Chapters Eight through Twelve. Strong evidence now tends to demonstrate that tremendous volcanic activity on nearby Thera, or Santorini, at about this same time may have been responsible, at least in part, for this. The famous parting of the Red Sea has now been seen as a confusion with the "Reed Sea", a much smaller body of water along Egypt's Mediterranean coast having many sand banks at or near sea level. Exodus, Chapter, Fourteen, Verses 16 through 22.

The number of those among Moses' party is estimated at about three million. The Bible directly alludes to a "mixed multitude" that went with them. Exodus, Chapter Twelve, Verse 38. To me, this language can only mean that the Exodus was a movement primarily of and for racial and cultural integrity. But here at the same time was a portent of the danger that lay ahead.

While these and other traditional "miracles" closely associated with the Exodus may thus be rationally explained as I have done, the lesser-known ones cannot. Either they are straight fabrication or they are direct extraterrestrial involvement: "And the Lord went before them by day in a pillar of cloud, to lead them the way; and by night in a pillar of fire, to give them light; to go by day and night;" Exodus, Chapter Thirteen, Verse 21. As I stress, this is either real or it is not. And if it is real, then it must have assumed some form.

The land they were bound for was anything but a barren wilderness. It was heavily populated, containing fortified cities. But due to this pillar of fire, "The people shall hear and be afraid; sorrow shall take hold on the inhabitants of Palestina." "Then the dukes of Edom shall be amazed: the mighty men of Moab, trembling shall take hold upon them; all the inhabitants of Canaan shall melt away." Exodus, Chapter Fifteen, Verses 14 and 15.

Forty years of wandering in the Sinai Desert was what was required in order to flush out the last influences of the former decayed and corrupt culture they were leaving behind. One generation had to grow old and die off while a new one was being raised in a harsh, sobering but purifying new environment. It makes one ponder: How few of these so-called "Whites" here today are even worthy of the name, much less fit to be part of a new nation free from the spoiling effects of rampant materialism and multi-culturalism? How many would miss their colored friends and their colored ways?

The giving of the Ten Commandments is, of course, quite a climactic scene. No one other than Moses himself was to go near Mount Sinai for this. "And Mount Sinai was altogether on a smoke, because the Lord descended upon it in fire; and the smoke thereof ascended as the smoke of a furnace, and the whole mount quaked greatly." Exodus, Chapter Nineteen, Verse 18.

Subsequent descriptions of Moses' "radiant face" after having come face-to-face with God, which was so upsetting to the Israelites that "We do not wish for law and order, for law and order means the continued existence of this rotten, rip-off, Capitalist Jew System. We wish for anarchy and chaos which will enable us to attack the System while her Big Brother Pigs are trying to keep the pieces from falling apart. We wish for a situation so confused and mixed-up that we can go after those bastards responsible for the anti-White policies and attacks against our people which now exist. Such chaos would allow us to so intensify our assaults that we could very well plunge the entire System to its death."

Moses was compelled to wear a veil henceforth, along with the details of the construction and the performance of the Ark of the Covenant, not only a means of communicating with God but also a powerful and deadly weapon, both help paint a fairly plain picture of what indeed was going on here at this time. Exodus, Chapters Twenty-Five and Thirty-Four, Verses 29 through 35.

Very special emphasis is placed upon the identities of those people who would be encountered and displaced in the Promised Land. These were the Canaanite tribes themselves: The Amorites, the Hitittes, the Perizzites, the Hivites, the Jebusites, the Girgashites, etc. According to God, these were to be "cut off".

"Thou shalt not bow down to their gods, nor serve them; nor do after their works: but thou shalt utterly overthrow them, and quite break their images." Exodus, Chapter Twenty-Three, Verses 23 and 24.

These words pose a reminder as well as a precursor of exactly how the Cro-Magnons dealt with the native Neanderthals they found in Europe and how our own pioneers dealt with the native Red Indians they found here in North America.

Where's the "love" and "brotherhood", the "tolerance" for people other than one's own in that? The "One-Verse Charlies" are preaching a doctrine which does not find its origin in the word of God, in the Bible. And, as always, the proof of the pudding is in the eating. Look at the results of all this insanity in the world that surrounds you.

This "clearing of the land" was intended specifically to prevent the following scenario: "Lest thou make a covenant with the inhabitants of the land, and they go on a whoring after their gods, and do sacrifice unto their gods, and one call thee, and thou eat of his sacrifice." Exodus, Chapter Thirty-Four, Verse 15. This perfectly describes the goings on within a multi-cultural, multi-racial society. I easily can recall the terrific battle our people put up against the drive on the part of the Satanic Beast System to force them to not only eat with non-whites but to attend the same schools with them as well, etc. To infect them with their "music", to push them into the same workplace together, etc.

Much more to the point is the very next verse: "And thou shalt take of their daughters unto thy sons, and their daughters go a whoring after their gods, and make thy sons go a whoring after their gods." It doesn't require interpretation.

Part III

The Bible is history, genealogy, philosophy and law. Little or no so-called "religion". The Books of Leviticus and Deuteronomy mainly cover law. A great many of the opening pages of Leviticus are devoted to ritual sacrifice which, to the superficial and careless reader may certainly sound like religious nonsense but, as I covered in a separate article, link directly with what today is generally known as "livestock mutilation" on the part of extraterrestrials and so it won't be taken up here.

The broad masses of people, in their false understanding that the Bible is "Jewish" and that Israel was and is "Jewish", have also among their very limited awareness of Jews the business about circumcision and the abstinence from eating pork. But WHY are these things?

Someone knew a great deal about advanced science many thousands of years ago. They knew that not only would circumcision aid in hygiene and disease prevention, it would also go far in stamping out hemophilia. And they knew that to circumcise a child on his eighth day of life would mean performing that ritual just at the precise moment when his system was set to heal itself the fastest. ,

Since the invention of the microscope we have been aware of the presence of microbes which exist in the flesh of swine and which can lead to trichinosis if the meat is not cooked properly. How would they have known of such things thousands of years ago?

From sacrificial rites to dietary laws to rules that governed sexual conduct. Incest is forbidden. Bestiality is forbidden. Homosexuality is forbidden. Necrophilia is forbidden. "Wickedness, confusion and abomination", are each of these practices called in the Bible. Furthermore it is stated that these are the customs of those people – the Canaanites – that God was about to "cut off" in favor of the Israelites.

“The crack of gunfire is the only reality the masses care to pay any attention to. The revolution belongs only to those who are prepared to suffer the consequences of disrupting the silence of darkness.

"The woman shall not wear that which pertaineth to a man, neither shall a man put on a woman's garment: For all that do so are abomination unto the Lord thy God." Deuteronomy, Chapter Twenty-Two, Verse 5.

To financial matters, no "usury" – the charging of high interest – may be placed upon a brother Israelite. But upon a stranger, usury may be employed. Plus a sentence of death is to be levied against any usurer.

If any mention is given at all to religion, it is aimed toward the avoidance of it. "Ye shall make you no idols nor graven image, nor rear you up a standing image, neither shall ye set up any image of stone in your land, to bow down unto it: For I am the Lord your God." Leviticus, Chapter Twenty-Six, Verse 1. Man's inherent tendency to give precedent over to form ahead of function. The "living God" admonishes his people in every way possible not to confuse the real thing with the man-made fakes. This remains, however, one of man's greatest weaknesses and failings.

If God's people – Israel – would keep these laws, "I will give peace in the land, and ye shall lie down, and none shall make you afraid: and I will rid evil beasts out of the land, neither shall the sword go through your land." "And you shall chase your enemies, and they shall fall before you by the sword." "And five of you shall chase a hundred, and a hundred of you shall put ten thousand to flight." Leviticus, Chapter Twenty-Six, Verses 6, 7 and 8.

However, should the people not listen to the Word and not keep these laws, a warning was issued as to what they might then expect – "I will even appoint over you terror, consumption and the burning ague, that shall consume the eyes, and cause sorrow of heart: and ye shall sow your seed in vain, for your enemies shall eat it."

"And I will set my face against you, and ye shall be slain before your enemies: they that hate you shall reign over you; and ye shall flee when none pursueth you." Leviticus, Chapter Twenty-Six, Verses 16 and 17.

It goes on at some length but I think the point is made. We begin to recognize an apt description of how American society has become in the Post World War Two years. Is it God's curse or only the way the deterioration of a formerly great society may be expected to proceed once a doctrine of falsehood has been adopted? Take your pick. But

One-Verse Charlies

Kurt Saxon in 1968

The early forerunner of "The Poor Man's James Bond", by "Don Sisco", a.k.a. Kurt Saxon, circa 1970

for this to have been written thus, somebody really had to have known what they were talking about.

A former neighborhood of mine in the heart of a great U.S. metropolis overrun as it was with homosexuals, etc., had a number of large, wealthy churches in it. Each church facade, regardless of denomination, bore the same bright banner reading, "Welcoming All In a Community of Diversity". From Numbers, Chapter One, Verse 51, we have this "Come One, Come All" type of welcoming, "And when the tabernacle setteth forward, the Levites shall take it down: and when the tabernacle is to be pitched, the Levites shall set it up: and the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death."

The following is either fabrication or it is real. And if it is real, then we must ponder its actual form: "And on the day that the tabernacle was reared up the cloud covered the tabernacle, namely, the tent of the testimony: and at even there was upon the tabernacle as it were the appearance of fire, until the morning," "So it was always: the cloud covered it by day, and the appearance of fire by night." "And when the cloud was taken up from the tabernacle, then after that the children of Israel journeyed: and in the place where the cloud abode, there the children of Israel pitch their tents." Numbers, Chapter Nine, Verses 15, 16 and 17.

Later on in Numbers, the people of Israel, even with God literally breathing down their necks, lapsed periodically into degenerate ways. "And Israel abode in Shittim, and the people began to commit whoredoms with the daughters of Moab." Multi-racialism and multi-culturalism, again. God was so outraged that he commanded of Moses to "take all the heads of the people, and hang them up before the Lord against the sun, that the fierce anger of the Lord may be turned away from Israel." Chapter Twenty-Five, Verses 1 and 4.

The plague that resulted from this mass sin claimed twenty-four thousand lives. It was finally stayed when one descendant of Aaron, Phinehas, upon witnessing the outrage of one Israelite man bringing a Mediant woman into the presence of Moses, took a spear and killed them both with one thrust. Numbers, Chapter Twenty-Five, Verses 6, 7 and 8. Had they then been manipulated by the same press as we have today, resulting in the present mindset, Phinehas would have been charged with a so-called "hate crime".

I'm reminded of my old friend and comrade, Joseph Paul Franklin, who, after seeing an inter-racial photo spread in the pages of "Hustler" magazine, took a rifle and shot the publisher, Larry Flynt. Dozens of other race-mixers did Franklin kill all across the country during the late Seventies and the early Eighties before his luck finally ran out and he was identified and captured by the "Grim Reaper" tattoo on one of his forearms. Today, as of this writing, he sits on Death Row, condemned by the Satanic Beast System. And although this modern-day "Phinehas Priest" did his duty before God, the plague we are under continues to rage on. (Franklin has since been murdered by the Beast System.)

Concepts of "brotherhood" and "tolerance" are again taken up in Deuteronomy when the names of the following tribes are once more invoked: "the Hittites, Gtqashites, Amorites, Canaanites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites." "Seven nations greater and mightier than thou:" "And when the lord thy God shall deliver them before thee, thou shalt smite them, and utterly destroy them; thou shalt make no covenant with them, nor show mercy unto them:" "Neither shalt thou make marriages with them, thy daughter thou shalt not give unto his son, nor his daughter shalt thou take unto thy son."

"For they will turn away thy son from following me, that they may serve other gods: so will the anger of the Lord be kindled against you, and destroy thee suddenly." Chapter Seven, Verses 1 through 4.

Now these very people being spoken of and condemned here are today still very much with us and are accepted as nominally "White". They are racial Jews. What would God have had to say about mixing with any others, plainly Black, Brown or Yellow, etc.? It is that one might be tricked into fraternizing with the former, but as for the latter, it could fall under the Biblical heading of bestiality. There in those times it was a case of Israelite men chasing after these "strange women". Here today, unfortunately, it is White women to be seen in the company of these "strangers". Only a society all the way gone could even contemplate or countenance such a thing.

A bit of prophecy from Deuteronomy: "For thou art an holy people unto the Lord thy God, and the Lord hath chosen thee to be a peculiar people unto himself, above all the nations that are upon the earth." Chapter Fourteen, Verse 2. God's chosen people. But it goes further into their description: "For the Lord thy God blesseth thee as he promised thee: and thou shalt lend unto many nations, but thou shalt not borrow; and thou shalt reign over many nations, but they shall not reign over thee." Chapter Fifteen, Verse 6. This description historically fits only one people living today – the Anglo-Saxons. (That was until most recently when the Anglo-Saxons permitted the parasitical Jewish element in their bloodstream to take over and rise to dominance. More on that later.)

Even government is discussed: "Thou shalt in any wise set him king over thee, whom the Lord thy God shall choose: one from among thy brethren shalt thou set king over thee: thou mayest not set a stranger over thee, which is not thy brother." Deuteronomy, Chapter Seventeen, Verse 15.

Though the present Beast System has thus far stuck mainly to the use of White traitors – "Judas-goats" – to act as its tools in offices of authority, the number of non-white officials, cabinet members, those in control of media and finance, etc., is and has been alarmingly high for the past century. And, I might add, becoming worse all the time. This to the extent that the "crowning glory" of abomination, a Black president, at this point would cause little jar, the "softening up" process having already gone so far. (We have since seen a Negroid "president".)

Today they uniformly condemn and deride Hitler's racial qualifications as outlined within his 1935 Nuremberg Laws, as concerns what may or may not be considered Aryan, calling it "pseudoscience" and "humbug". The principle being denied here is that a pure spirit cannot possibly be housed in an impure vessel. From Deuteronomy, Chapter Twenty-Three, Verse 2, we read, "A bastard shall not enter into the congregation of the Lord; even to his tenth generation." Regarding crosses with Edomites and Egyptians, "The children that are begotten of them shall enter into the congregation of the Lord in their third generation." Deuteronomy, Chapter Twenty-Three, Verse 8. That is how long it would require to breed out the impurity of blood.

If I am to be accused of distorting the meaning of the Bible by taking things out of their context, please feel free to read it all for yourself. If I am to be accused of being off on a crusade of imbalance, placing inordinate emphasis on the apparently extraterrestrial and, especially, the racial implications throughout the Bible – of being my own "One-Verse Charlie" – it is only because these critical twin pillars of understanding are what is completely absent from common, present-day teaching. I am required to turn the wheel to the extreme opposite direction just in order to begin to achieve some semblance of balance.

I maintain that it is super-abundantly clear that the society is dying more all the time, helplessly, even while the "Billy Graham" types have a field day and rake in the millions BECAUSE the kernel of the truth of what they are preaching has been removed, leaving the bulk of the remainder as basically useless. It is called "easy believe".

It is only by signing an agreement with the I.R.S. not to ever broach any of this that these churches may continue to enjoy their tax-exempt status. But, at that, most ministers today are every bit as lost as anyone else as they emerge from these modern seminaries. They may be serious about what they do – "doing right in their own eyes" – but it simply doesn't jibe with the Word of God. These are referred to in the Bible as "blind guides".

So what god is it that they are serving?

Part IV

In the first edition of "One-Verse Charlies", I said that I had not taken the time necessary to count the exact number of times that the listing of accursed Canaanite tribes was given in the Bible. These, again, are the "Canaanites, Hittites, Hivites, Perizzites, Gergashites, Amorites and Jebusites." I did, however, state at the time that it was a lot, so many in fact that I was certain it was done for emphasis' sake. I also said then that the reaction of most people was to write the whole thing off as silliness.

Well, I subsequently did count the exact number of times those tribes were given and, in the course of so doing, I hit upon the answer to the riddle of Saint John's "666" in Revelation. In fact, John TELLS us to "count the number of the Beast". It was a total of eighteen times up to the key verse of Second Kings, Chapter 16, Verse 6, where the word "Jew" makes its first appearance. Three sixes = eighteen.

The significance? By the point in the history of ancient Israel we reach by Second Kings, things have deteriorated so badly, the society has gotten so mixed up, that everything within it now is called a "Jew". That includes these Canaanites. The real trick, however, is that with the coming of Christ, all racially sound, that is, White, elements, not only become Christian but LEAVE the area. The only thing remaining behind as "Jews" are these racial Canaanites which, also, by the way, we learn are the living reality behind the mythological "Satan" allegory.

Continuing with the Book of Joshua, this great general of the Israelite people says, "Hereby ye shall know that the living God is among you, and that he will without fail drive out from before you..." and goes on to recite once more these same Canaanite tribes for what is the twelfth time. Joshua, Chapter Three, Verse 10.

The remainder of Joshua deals with the military conquest of Canaan. In several places the command, repeated just before an assault upon a walled city held by one of the alien tribes, "Judah to the front!", is made. One critical thing that the "One-Verse Charlies" do not inform their congregations of is that the Twelve Tribes of Israel, following their captivity and dispersion of about 500 B.C., each made their way into Europe to subsequently establish a modern European state that each one of us, today, may trace his lineage to. Judah, for example, is Germany.

During the Chinese "Boxer" Rebellion of 1900, in a rare display of Christian, Aryan unity, the nations of Europe and America sent a combined military force to relieve the besieged foreign legations that were surrounded at Peking by these "Boxers". The overall command of this expedition was in the hands of Count Waldersee and the cry could once again be heard, "Germans to the front!"

Here, in most recent times, we see an actual reenactment of all the Tribes of Israel committed together against the "Dragon", as represented by China.

Before Joshua is concluded, however, two ominous verses appear: "Yet the children of Manasseh could not drive out the inhabitants of these cities; but the Canaanites would dwell in that land." "Yet it came to pass, when the children of Israel were waxen strong, that they put the Canaanites to tribute, but did not utterly drive them out." Joshua, Chapter Seventeen, Verses 12 and 13. Practically every one of the rest of the Tribes commits this same grave omission.

The Book of Judges continues in this same vein. "And the Lord with Judah; and he drove out the inhabitants of the mountains; but could not drive out the inhabitants of the valley, because they had chariots of iron." Judges, Chapter One, Verse 19. So it was with the Benjamites, too, not fully clearing Jerusalem of Jebusites; Manasseh leaving Canaanites in Megiddo (more commonly known as "Armageddon") and environs. The same for the Tribes of Ephraim, Zebulun, Asher, Naphtali, Dan, etc. The land and its people were conquered and subjected but not cleared. Judges, Chapter One, Verses 21 and 27 through 35.

To this, God responded, "and I said, I will never break my covenant with you." "And ye shall make no league with the inhabitants of the land; ye shall throw down their altars: but ye have not obeyed my voice: why have ye done this?"

The Sphinx of Egypt

"Wherefore I also said, I will not drive them out from before you; but they shall be as thorns in your sides, and their gods shall be a snare unto you." Judges, Chapter Two, Verses 1, 2 and 3.

This works out in living, practical terms to increasing Jewish presence, influence and domination. Sure enough, in short time the effects of multi-racialism and multi-culturalism began to take their toll: "And the children of Israel did evil in the sight of the Lord, and served Baalim:" "And they forsook the Lord God of their fathers, which brought them out of the land of Egypt, and followed other gods, of the gods of the people that were round about them, and bowed themselves unto them, and provoked the Lord to anger." "And they forsook the Lord, and served Baal and Ashtaroth." Judges, Chapter Two, Verses 11, 12 and 13.

Forget the weird-sounding language of "serving other gods". This only means that the Whites were beginning to absorb the non-white ways of the surrounding, darker natives. And this always leads to problems and dissolution within any society that lets it happen.

These major, mainstream Christian churches being fully included in this, if you do not know and understand who and what God really is and what he is about, then you may be certain that whatever it is you THINK you are serving is something else – a falsehood, a mistake, a lie. What does it matter how pious or sincere a person, an institution or an entire nation may be in anything if it, by being off-base, is all wrong and misguided? I maintain, then, that what we have here today isn't even Christianity but, better put, "Judeo-Christianity"... a superstition only loosely based on the Bible.

"Ye shall know them by their fruits." It doesn't matter how "pretty" the words may sound, etc., the fact is that this kind of belief together with the practice that proceeds from it has taken the United States in less than a single century from being the new Promised Land and made of it what John in Revelation refers to as the Whore of Babylon.

The ultimate abomination inevitably surfaces once the belief system of a people is shot: "And the children of Israel dwelt among the Canaanites, Hittites, Amorites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites:" "And they took their daughters to be their wives, and gave their daughters to their sons, and served their gods." Judges, Chapter Three, Verses 5 and 6. That so happens to be the seventeenth in John's count toward the identity of the Beast.

The words integration, race-mixing and miscegenation of course had not yet been coined but the concepts are the same now just as they were then. The results, too, remain just the same: Racial and national death.

In the First Book of Samuel, a most interesting tale of the Ark of the Covenant is related. During a battle which was lost by the Israelites, the Philistines (related to Canaanites) took the Ark as a prize of war. This Ark – by the descriptions given of it in the Bible – was nothing less than an atomic device which the Israelites had successfully used in times past to defeat their numerically superior enemies in battle. But, at the best of times, the Ark was highly unstable and dangerous, even to its users.

Now, in the strange hands of the Philistines, it proved to them to be more of a liability than a trophy. After much death and destruction – and the mysterious appearance of tumors inside those who had been close to it – as a consequence of its capture and presence within their camp, the Philistines put the Ark on an ox cart and headed it back toward the line of the Israelites just in order to be rid of it. First Samuel, Chapters Four, Five and Six.

Out-of-place technology? Or only one small example of a remnant of a culture that once was far more brilliant even than our own but which was, even at that time, in the final death throes of sinking into oblivion due, again, to the mixing the God-like strain with that of lesser breeds of human types? Once more I ask, if this is not all just fable, then what is it that we are regarding in hard, practical terms?

In Second Samuel we see King David having occupied Edom, garrisoning it and making it his vassal state. More fatal errors. Second Samuel, Chapter Eight. Halfway measures such as these, when concerning the building up of what is becoming a great nation, allow for the contaminates which will eventually spell the destruction of the entire effort. With the coming of peaceful conditions, the conquered will sooner or later assume "citizen" status and the process of mixing will be accelerated.

Next, there is the familiar story of David and Bathsheba. Modern preachers like to use this tale as an object lesson against adultery and personal treachery but it is far broader and more instructive to us today than that.

One-Verse Charlies

Joseph Paul Franklin from Government Circular

Israel is constantly at war with its neighbors. We see that within the army of Israel there are now some of the conquered Hittites serving as soldiers loyal to the king – formerly mortal foes. Bathsheba is given as "the wife of Uriah and Hittite", who was then away at war for King David. Second Samuel, Chapter Eleven, Verse 3. In the end, Bathsheba is the mother of King Solomon, David's successor. Second Samuel, Chapter Twelve, Verse 24.

At this precise point in its history, ancient Israel is at its greatest height. Naturally, it is always from there that the downturn begins.

From First Kings, Chapter Three, Verse 1, "And Solomon made affinity with Pharaoh king of Egypt, and took Pharaoh's daughter, and brought her into the city of David, until he made an end of building his own house, and the house of the Lord." Yet, at the same time, Solomon could make a prayer like this, "For thou didst separate them from among all the people of the earth, to be thine inheritance, as thou spakest by the hand of Moses thy servant, when thou broughtest our fathers out of Egypt, O Lord God." First Kings, Chapter Eight, Verse 53.

Back again to the Amorites, Hivites, Hittites, Perizzites, Jebusites, etc. "Their children that were left after them in the land, whom the children of Israel also were not able utterly to destroy, upon those did Solomon levy a tribute of bondservice unto this day." First Kings, Chapter Nine, Verse 21. And that is number eighteen in John's count toward the Beast. Understand this: Ordered by God to wipe them out and, having failed that, proceeding to accept them into their society one stage at a time. This equaled the death of ancient Israel and it equals the death of the United States in the present.

"But of the cities of these people, which the Lord thy God doth give thee for an inheritance, thou shalt save alive nothing that breatheth:"

"But thou shalt utterly destroy them; namely, the Hittites, and the Amorites, the Canaanites, and the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites; as the Lord thy God hath commanded thee:"

"That they teach you not to do after all their abominations, which they have done unto their gods; so should ye sin against the Lord your God." That was reaching back to Deuteronomy, Chapter Twenty, Verses 16, 17 and 18. It was also time number eleven in Saint John's count.

Just take a look at all the millions of lost Whites in this society today who, as a direct result of our own fathers not heeding the instruction of God, are now fully enmeshed in every one of the filthy abominations having been literally taught to them by the Jews who dominate the society.

First Kings, Chapter Eleven, Verses 1 through 8, are worth quoting at length:

"But King Solomon loved many strange wives, together with the daughter of Pharaoh, women of the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Zidonians and Hittites;"

"Of the nations concerning which the Lord said unto the children of Israel, ye shall not go into them neither shall they come in unto you: for surely they will turn away your heart after their gods: Solomon clave unto these in love."

"And he had seven hundred wives, princesses, and three hundred concubines: and his wives turned away his heart."

"For it came to pass, when Solomon was old, that his wives turned away from his heart after other gods: and his heart was not perfect with the Lord his God, as was the heart of David his father."

"For Solomon went after Ashtoreth the goddess of the Zidonians, and after Milkom and the abomination of the Ammonites."

"And Solomon did evil in the sight of the Lord, and went not fully after the Lord, as did David his father."

"Then did Solomon build an high place for Chemosh, the abomination of Moab, in the hill that is before Jerusalem, and for Molech, the abomination of the children of Ammon."

"And likewise did he for all his strange wives, which burnt incense and sacrificed unto their gods."

Cannot anyone catch, even through the sometimes difficult prose of the King James Bible, the direct parallel between the developments there and then, here and now? See what "freedom of religion" has come to represent. Freedom to "worship other gods" and, thereby, to become infected by alien creeds. Who can imagine there won't be consequences to pay for this? Only a blind fool could fail to realize that the mess the country is in now and has been in for a long time represents these self same consequences. And the worst is yet to come.

By Second Kings, Chapter Sixteen, Verse 6, the word "Jew" has made its first appearance. Things have become so bad, gotten so confused that, henceforth, the term "Jew" stands in for not only the assimilated Hittites, Hivites, Amorites, Perizzites, Jebusites, etc., but also for Edom collectively and, worst of all, for Israel itself! Exactly as what happened with American society following the Civil War: Confused, debased, Worthless, meaningless. A bastard society – literally!

By Second Chronicles, Chapter Six, Verses 32 and 33, Solomon is able to make the following pronouncement at the dedication of his temple: "Moreover concerning the stranger, which is not of thy people Israel, but is come from a far country for thy great name's sake, and thy mighty band, and thy stretched out arm; if they come and pray in this house;" "Then bear thou from the heavens, even from thy dwelling place, and do according to all that the strangers calleth to thee for: that all people of the earth may know thy people Israel, and may know that this house which I have built is called by thy name."

Such irony. In dedicating his temple, Solomon denied everything for which it supposedly stood. In fact, this address smacks of the words only afterward attached to the base of the Statue of Liberty, as penned by the Jewess, Emma Lazarus, pertaining to the flood of the scum of the earth which was then about to inundate the United States.

About the year 1000 B.C., Solomon died and the United Kingdom of Israel was split, divided between north and south. Israel, consisting of ten tribes and led by Ephraim, in the north with its capital at Samaria; Judah and Benjamin in the south with the capital at Jerusalem. Unity among the Tribes had always been tenuous at best but now, with the issue of taxation, that fragile unity was permanently rent.

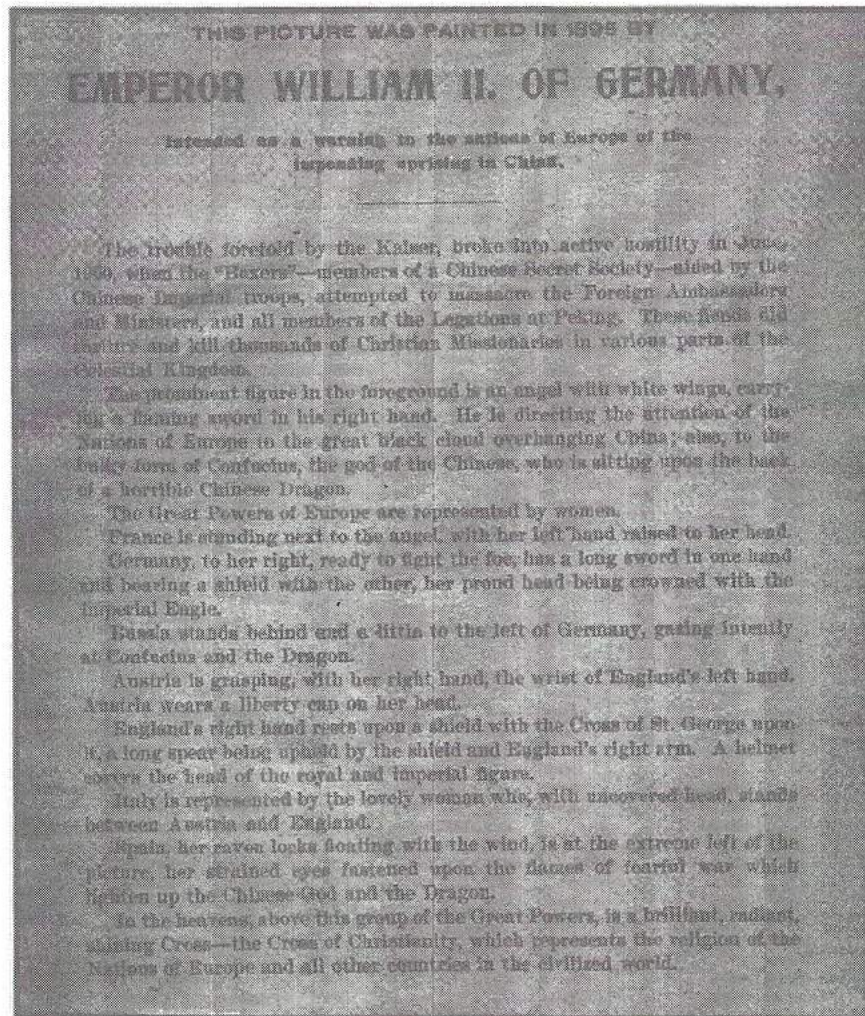

That civil war which ensued claimed at least five hundred thousand lives. Second Chronicles, Chapter Thirteen, Verse 17. By comparison, the U.S. Civil War – this country's most costly by far – claimed six hundred thousand.

That war ended in stalemate, however. Things lingered on, sinking deeper into corruption and degeneracy until, first Israel – represented by Ephraim and the nine other tribes that were allied with it – was conquered and deported by the Assyrians and, finally, Judah –together with Benjamin – was similarly invaded and taken away captive by the Babylonians. The time was about 500 B.C. Seventy years of captivity and the Persians came from the east to conquer all and to permit the Tribes of Israel to depart as they wished.

Approximately fifty thousand chose to return to Jerusalem, to rebuild Solomon's Temple and attempt a national restoration. But the days of Israel's glory were gone. The trend had been set in motion for the whole area to sink into the hellish mess that we see it as today: A racial and religious morass, devoid of Whites.

An estimated ten million had gone into captivity. Their fate makes up one of the greatest mysteries in the entire Bible and does represent the key to all Biblical prophecy, indeed, fully one-quarter of the Bible is given over to the books of the prophets.

Part V

Within the racist movement there has traditionally been a strong anti-Christian block. The Odinists, neo-paganists, etc. And, while one cannot find fault with their beliefs insofar as they promote White consciousness and unity, there is no real basis for such conflict. One has to bear in mind always that we are talking about Aryans on both sides of the issue and that they are a migratory people. It has been "migrate or die" in so many instances. Travel on to fresh, safe haven or linger and perish behind with the rotten.

When regarding the Bible and the story it contains of Israel, it must be borne in mind that only one corner of the White race is being covered, in one location and at one point in time. The difference seems to be that this particular branch was being attended directly by "the living God", was in the possession of very ancient, cosmic truth and did represent the final Aryan in-gathering toward Europe and to safety from contact, contamination or conquest with or by alien races.

They were special, the Israelites. They bore with them the key to the destiny of all the rest.

We know Aryan man was in Europe thirty thousand years ago. We know ancient Aryan remains have been found in places as far-flung and divergent as South America and China. From the Fall of Atlantis – or the expulsion from the Garden of Eden – Aryan man had been in steady retreat for thousands of years, bound inexorably for the geographic safety of Europe, until the low-point was reached at about the time of Christ.

From dying Egypt went several migrations of which that most famous one of Moses, the Exodus, was but the last. Earlier ones included those Aryans who founded the civilization of the Indus Valley – or ancient India – along with its brilliant Vedic wisdom. After having pushed southward the dark, native tribesmen they first encountered there, they established their caste system, or system of racial segregation, by which they hoped to perpetuate themselves and their culture. However, following sufficient time and proximity with these dark races, look at it all today.

Count Waldersee
Commander of the combined allied Forces in China

Another of these migrations predating that of Moses led to the founding of ancient Greece and, later, that of Scandinavia. Elements of the Tribes of Dan and Judah established both the Hellenistic and the Norse cultures. Consider "Dan's Mark", or Denmark. Living predecessors of Moses at that time included the actual Odin (whom even the Prose Edda states had made his way from out of Troy), Thor and Freya, etc., each long since having been mythologized and elevated to the status of a god, exactly as later on with Moses himself.

The eventual fate of Greece approximated that of India though not quite so stark and absolute. Proximity to Africa and the Near East is what was responsible. But far north of the Carpathians and the Alps, in Scandinavia, there was no worry concerning caste. As of today, that area still contains the highest percentage of Aryan, Nordic blood and the overall state of things there reflects the value of that. (A kind of dead, creeping liberalism notwithstanding.)

Their belief system, or their philosophical worldview, was hammered out of the organic traits inherent in their blood. But, even at that, it was incomplete and what saved them and what continues to save them is their geographic isolation from the Brown masses of the Third World.

A people has to be fully aware, has to be re-enforced against evil, has to be able to recognize it, confront it and be able to successfully rebuke it. Otherwise they are but victims waiting to be taken by it. And it is this pitiable condition, I maintain, that the "One-Verse Charlies" leave the so-called "Christians" of the world in today.

Second Chronicles ends this way: "But they mocked the messengers of God, and despised his words, and misused his prophets, until the wrath of the Lord arose against his people, till there was no remedy," Chapter Thirty-Six, Verse 16. Such became the case in ancient Israel by five centuries before Christ and such has become the case here today.

Do you recall the old canard that was familiar during the Sixties, "God is dead"? Well, God isn't dead. Only the belief system.

Within the Book of Ezra the message and the warning of the Bible become painfully and unmistakably clear – or should for any with the "eyes to see" and "ears to hear".

Ezra was one of those charged with leading those Israelites who chose to return back to Jerusalem from out of their Babylonian captivity. This was a sad and forlorn affair. The greatness of Israel was gone forever – smashed, scattered.

Ezra and his company sought a kind of "revival" but it was foredoomed by circumstances. For the invading conquerors had not only emptied the land of Israelites but had brought in to fill the vacant areas more of the same racial types that God had wanted destroyed in the beginning. They took forty years to build a poor replacement of Solomon's Temple, their work being interrupted by these racial "strangers". Ezra, Chapter Four, Verses 1 through 5. But they also did something else which should serve as a cold slap in the face for all of the doubters and the ignorant of today.

Ezra, Chapter Nine, Verses 1 through 3: "Now when these things were done, the princes came to me, saying, The people of Israel, and the priests, and the Levites, have not separated themselves from the people of the lands, doing according to their abominations, even of the Canaanites, Hittites, Perizzites, Jebusites, Ammonites, Moabites, Egyptians and the Amorites." "For they have taken of their daughters for themselves, and for their sons: so that the holy seed have mingled themselves with the people of those lands: yea, the hand of the princes and rulers hath been chief in this trespass." "And when I heard this thing, I rent my garment and my mantle, and plucked off the hair of my head and of my beard, and sat down astonished."

The cure? It was a noble try and it went like this: "Which thou hast commanded by thy servants the prophets, saying, The land, unto which we go to possess it, is an unclean land with the filthiness of the people of the lands, with their abominations, which have filled it from one end to another, with their uncleanness." "Now therefore give not your daughters unto their sons, neither take their daughters unto your sons, nor seek their peace or their wealth for ever that ye may be strong, and eat the good of the land and leave it for an inheritance to your children for ever." Ezra, Chapter Nine, Verses 11 and 12.

Wouldn't you just love to hear something like that coming from one of these modern, Sunday-morning pulpits? How refreshing, how re-enforcing. But it would cost them money and the "respectability" of the world, not to mention utterly overturning the groundwork of their cult of popular superstition. And so – truth be damned and the entire people themselves who may buy into this kind of belief right along with it.

Continuing, "Should we again break thy commandments, and join in affinity with the people of these abominations? Wouldest thou not be angry with us till thou hadst consumed us, so that there should be no remnant nor escaping?" Ezra, Chapter Nine, Verse 14.

In actuality that contingency had already been taken care of as by far most of Israel was even at that moment moving in great columns over the Caucasus Mountains (from which they took the name they share commonly today) in preparation for joining with their fellow Aryans already established in Western Europe.

Sadly, for the remnant there in what had been the Holy Land, there awaited only crucifixion.

Nonetheless, the valiant attempt at revival and reform went ahead. From Ezra, Chapter Ten, Verses 2 and 3: "And Shechaniab the son of Jehiel, one of the sons of Elam, answered and said unto Ezra, We have trespassed against our God, and have taken strange wives of the people of the land: yet now there is hope in Israel concerning this thing." "Now therefore let us make a covenant with our God to put away all the wives, and such as are born of them, according to the counsel of my lord, and of those that tremble at the commandment of our God; and let it be done according to the law."

This belated campaign of "ethnic cleansing" was undertaken as a matter of governmental policy. This really is a thing that "can't happen here" because the present regime actively promotes the pollution of the Holy Seed as a major cornerstone of its platform. Only the destruction of it can save the people from ultimate doom. Clear enough. I claim no tax exemptions. This is WAR and I have chosen my side.

The next book, Nehemiah, begins to bring forth the ensuing confusion, the basic hopelessness of the situation there at that time. "And there was a great cry of the people and of their wives against their brethren the Jews." Nehemiah, Chapter Five, Verse 1. This new group, Jews.

Obviously not Israel. They were representative of all the multi-racial, bastard seed which nominally was adhering to an equally bastardized version of the Hebrew Temple, even then undergoing "rabbinic interpretation" via the Babylonian Talmud and emerging as "Judaism".

For the rest, the vast bulk of former Israel, those whose blood remained untainted and who thereby retained the instinct to move on into a new life even though they were well on their way to forgetting their former selves, their past and their downfall, and would be "pagans" for the next thousand years, the entire future was solely in their hands. The books of the prophets deal with them and that future.

Before arriving there, however, there is the Book of Esther. One simply has to read it, comprehend it in light of what should have been gleaned thus far, and know that here is a horrific tale involving those whom we know today as Jews. Not the people of Israel, but Jews.

Persia had essentially liberated the deported and captive people of Israel – all of them. Now we find Persia infested with Jews, dominating all aspects of national life. This is an activity unknown to Aryans who will always seek their own liberty, their own way. Moreover, we see Esther herself as she consorts with the king of Persia and manipulating him in favor of the Jews, against his own people and government ministers. No Aryan female worthy of the name would carry on thus. But a racial Jewess, yes.

It ends with the slaughter of tens of thousands of Persians who sought to free their land from Jewish control and the murder of all loyal Persian men of government who fought as patriots. Since that time the occasion has been marked by Jews as "Purim" and celebrated annually. An insight into the collective nature and mind of a people. Though no preamble is provided, the very contrast in characteristics between peoples should be sufficient to alert the astute reader that here is a very clear and somber warning about the Jews. Plus it is noteworthy that in this one book, there is no mention at all of the Lord.

Returning to the opening comments regarding the apparent conflict between Odinism and Christianity, the Books of Psalms and Proverbs provided me at least with an instant insight as to the truth of this matter. As one who has long been part of the National Socialist struggle – not to mention one who spent his entire young life as militantly opposed to (and ignorant of) the Bible as any of the rest – I have been intimately familiar with the philosophy and the sayings as contained in the Norse Eddas, the wisdom and prose of the Vikings, etc.

As instinctively as I was able to discern what was going on in Esther, I at once saw that the same blood and spirit as had penned Psalms and Proverbs also had been that responsible for composing the Prose Edda, etc. And for me, that alone was a major shock, revelation and clincher in seeing that the Bible is OUR BOOK and not the estate of our – and God's – mortal enemies. Maybe, hopefully, you too will know the exhilarating feeling that a realization such as that can bring.

Next, the books of the prophets. Some of the most dramatic reading of all because it is addressing us, today, in this very place and time. True prophecy, they say, is that which carries through to transcend times and places. The detail by which these times correspond with those is both chilling and alarming but its purpose by that – aside from letting us know it is all quite real – is to let us know exactly where we're at in terms of the Master Plan and its final outcome.

Part VI

The dark days immediately prior to the fall and captivity of ancient Israel when real meaning was given to the phrase, "the chickens having come home to roost." The lapses of faith, the transgressions of the law, etc., for the past thousand years now suddenly were here to collect their due. The cup of iniquity was at last full to overflowing. Big talk and big ideas were no longer of any avail. First the Assyrians and then the Babylonians were at the gates.

There's a special place within me for the prophets of the Old Testament. I know what they went through. In my first book, Siege, I went on at great length saying many of the same things about today's times and places as they were saying then, just before the boom finally fell on complacency. Imagine my shock when I first read them and saw that there was something present there more than familiar, more than coincidental. It was nothing short of life-changing.

And today, as I write these articles from incarceration, things go on in the only way they can go. While in no way pretty, within the pages of the prophets there at least may be found some measure of vindication and edification. Knowledge of exactly where, when, how and with whom the last laugh will come carries its own sweet brand of satisfaction.

As I was departing my family home after my first forty years of life, my parting thought and comment was that I only now wished to witness the death of this system – even if it meant my own death as a result. The Bible says that even as Noah assumed the ridicule of all of his fellows by building the Ark, he was by so doing cursing the world. By tearing up roots in this way and heading for parts unknown as I was, I was cursing the world as well.

But that expression of hope is just that: A hope. It stands a very reasonable chance of happening. Predictions for the collapse of this evil and rotten arrangement are nothing spooky at all, merely logical conclusions based upon harsh but accurate observations.

There's another dimension however to the visions of the great prophets. They not only were able to see their own times as no one else seemed to be able, they saw also our times. This consideration alone, if I may understate my case, is at the very least worthy of serious note. And again, you'll certainly not find any of the "One-Verse Charlies" telling it this way.

Here it is – payback time.

From Isaiah, Chapter One, Verses 7, 9, and 12 through 15: "Your country is desolate, your cities are burned with fire; your land, strangers devour it in your presence, and it is desolate, as overthrown by strangers." "Except the Lord of Hosts had left unto us a very small remnant, we should have been as Sodom, and we should have been like unto Gomorrah."

"When ye come to appear before me, who hath required this at your hand, to tread my courts?" "Bring no more vain oblations; incense is an abomination unto me; the new moons and Sabbaths, the calling of assemblies, I cannot away with; it is iniquity, even the solemn meeting."

"Your new moons and your appointed feasts my soul hateth: they are a trouble unto me; I am weary to bear them."

"And when ye spread forth your hands, I will hide mine eyes from you: yea, when ye make many prayers, I will not hear: your hands are full of blood."

God is honest enough in his rebuke. The same situation exists here today. You've read the preceding segments of this series. How does this jibe with what these millions of people who pour into these churches represent and accost the ears of God with? And their actions? And their results? The chips are about to fall. Yet these ministers – doing entirely according to which way the wind blows – continue with their dog and pony shows and take your money, thank you.

From Isaiah, Chapter Two, Verses 5 and 6: "O house of Jacob, come ye, and let us walk in the light of the Lord." "Therefore thou hast forsaken thy people the house of Jacob, because they be replenished from the east, and are soothsayers like the Philistines, and they please themselves in the children of strangers."

Chapter Three, Verses 5, 9 and 12: "And the people shall be oppressed, every one by another, and every one by his neighbor: the child shall behave himself proudly against the ancient, and the base against the honorable."

"The show of their countenance doth witness against them; and they declare their sin as Sodom, they hide it not. Woe unto their soul! For they have rewarded evil unto themselves."

"As for my people, children are their oppressors, and women rule over them. O my people, they which lead thee cause thee to err, and destroy the way of thy paths."

Chapter Five, Verses 13, 21, 23 and 24: "Therefore my people are gone into captivity, because they have no knowledge: and their honorable men are famished, and their multitude dried up with thirst." "Therefore hell hath enlarged herself, and opened her mouth without measure: and their glory, and their multitude, and their pomp, and he that rejoiceth, shall descend into it."

"Woe unto them that are wise in their own eyes, and prudent in their own sight!"

"Which justify the wicked for reward, and take away the righteousness of the righteous from him!"

"Therefore as the fire devoureth the stubble and the flame consumeth the chaff, so their root shall be as rottenness, and their blossom shall go up as dust: because they have cast away the law of the Lord of hosts, and despised the word of the Holy One of Israel."

If the shoe fits...

Isaiah, Chapter Seven, Verse 14, presages the coming of Jesus: "Therefore the Lord himself shall give you a sign; Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel."

As I noted in my first book, each and every German soldier in World War Two had as part of his uniform, stamped into his belt buckle surmounting the Eagle and Swastika, the motto, "Gott Mit Uns", or "God Is With Us", or "Immanuel".

Isaiah, Chapter Nine, Verse 21: "Manasseh, Ephraim; and Ephraim, Manasseh: and they together shall be against Judah."

Elsewhere within the prophecies it also mentions the backstabbing of Edom against Judah as well as the "drunkards of Ephraim". (Chapter Twenty-Eight, Verse 1.) Here is the exact configuration of the Second World War: Manasseh (the United States in prophecy) and Ephraim (England) allied against Judah (Germany) and joined by Edom (the Soviet Union). Even the "drunkard", Winston Churchill, and the Red Flag of the Edomite Jews who had seized control of Russia.

That conflagration then was suicide for the safety and security of ancient Israel, just as the Second World War spelled the suicide of Western Civilization which was itself but the modern and expanded Israel.

And if Adolf Hitler was not but one more manifestation of a Christ, a true Messiah, then there is no meaning to any of this anywhere.

What we have since been left with, from Isaiah, Chapter Ten, Verses 1 through 3: "Woe unto them that decree unrighteous decrees, and that write grievousness which they have prescribed." "To turn aside the needy from judgement, and to take away the right from the poor of my people, that widows may be their prey, and that they may rob the fatherless." "And what will ye do in the day of visitation, and in the desolation which will come from afar? To whom will ye flee for help? And where will ye leave your glory?"

Now to the future. Isaiah, Chapter Ten, Verses 20 through 22: "And it shall come to pass in that day, that the remnant of Israel, and such as are escaped of the house of Jacob, shall no more again stay upon him that smote them; but shall stay upon the Lord, the Holy One of Israel, in truth." "The remnant shall return, even the remnant of Jacob, unto the mighty God." "For though thy people Israel be as the sand of the sea, yet a remnant of them shall return: the consumption decreed shall overflow with righteousness."

The fifty thousand seen returning to Jerusalem after the conquest of the Babylonians by the Persians but, much more importantly, the rest of Israel – numbering close to ten million, "as the sand of the sea" – seen departing for Europe from out of what had become a hopeless mess. There to exist as "pagans" for many centuries until the advent of Jesus of Nazareth would give them back their lost heritage. And in the immediate and distant futures, periodic returns to the former Holy Land, first with Ezra, then with the Galileans, then the Crusaders, and finally with Allenby in 1917. Prophecy fulfilled.

Among my own very favorite verses are numbers 14, 15 and 16, all from Chapter Thirteen of Isaiah: "And it shall be as the chased roe, and as a sheep that no man taketh up: they shall every man turn to his own people, and flee every one into his own land." "Every one that is found shall be thrust through; and every one that is joined unto them shall fall by the sword." "Their children also shall be dashed to pieces before their eyes; their houses shall be spoiled, and their wives ravished."

That exact scenario had to have taken place at about the time that the Tribes were picking up and departing the Middle East and heading toward Europe. No non-whites were going to be allowed to follow along. And no Whites who were consorting with non-whites were coming, either. But the same words might just as well describe a Christian "jihad", or Holy War, in the present time and place.

The only reference in the Bible to one of my own favorite subjects – the Great Pyramid – comes also in Isaiah. Chapter Nineteen, Verse 19: "In that day shall there be an altar to the Lord in the midst of the land of Egypt, and a pillar at the border thereof to the Lord."

One or more hidden chambers in and around the Sphinx and Pyramid complex at Giza, in Egypt, have already been detected. Theories project that, among treasure and mummies, a library – probably off Atlantis – that will contain materials to clarify all the confusion that has attached itself to the story of God and mankind will be found there. The only question is: Will it come in time? According to the way Revelation turns out, the answer is no. But that isn't important. Only that they are getting so very close to finding it which has to also mean that the prophecy of Revelation, too, is getting close to playing itself out.

In Chapter Twenty-Three of Isaiah much mention is made of "Tarshish" and "the isles of the sea". This is Tartessos in Spain and the British Isles beyond. "Spain" itself means "the Secret Land" but its older name is "Iberia" which itself is but a corruption of the word "Hebrew". The Tribe of Simeon was to eventually settle modern Spain. "Britain" is a contraction of two Hebrew words, "Brith" and "Ain", which together mean "Land of the Covenant". Going further, the ancient name of Ireland is "Hibernia", another corruption of "Hebrew". Then, off the coast of Scotland, there are the Hebrides. The ancient languages and writing of these places are themselves closely related to the Hebrew tongue.

History does note that the Phoenicians – or "Tyre" – were magnificent colonizers and sea-farers. Way ahead of even the Greeks or the Romans, they had planted their seed in all of these places. Phoenicia was but a splinter from off of ancient Israel, representing elements of the Tribe of Dan. Would it not make absolute sense that, with the collapse and fall of the Holy Land itself, the healthy remnant might be expected to go outward to the colonies to resettle?

From Chapter Twenty-Seven, Verse 6: "He shall cause them that come of Jacob to take root: Israel shall blossom and bud, and fill the face of the world with fruit." The future. Only the White race has fulfilled this prophecy. No one else. And certainly not the Jews. This future that Isaiah describes even as ancient Israel is being destroyed and carried away prisoner, is that of the nations of Western, Christian Civilization, each one representing one of the Twelve Tribes, and the respective world empires they would establish.

Chapter Twenty-Nine, Verse 5: "Moreover the multitude of thy strangers shall be like small dust and the multitude of the terrible ones shall be as chaff that passeth away: Yea, it shall beat the instant suddenly." Once more, this had to have taken place at the time the Tribes were leaving the Near East and getting rid of the colored presence among them. But, quite plainly, it's got to happen again in the not too distant future.

Chapter Thirty, Verse 17: "One thousand shall flee at the rebuke of one; at the rebuke of five shall ye flee: till ye be left as a beacon upon the top of a mountain, and as an ensign upon a hill."

Chapter Thirty-One, Verse 5: "As birds flying so will the Lord of hosts defend Jerusalem; defending also he will deliver it; and passing over he will preserve it." So was foretold the arrival in December of 1917 of the British forces under General Allenby who had come to occupy Jerusalem after the Turks had fled following a fly-over by the infant Royal Air Force. On their accouterments were Stars of David and carried by the bandsmen were silver bugles, just as with the army of Joshua. Even the sound of the bagpipes had returned. In a gesture of the greatest respect, Allenby dismounted and entered Jerusalem on foot via the Jaffa Gate.

The British then held Palestine as a mandate until 1948 when, between the insurrection of the Edomite Jews and their own liberal decay within Parliament, they were compelled to evacuate. The counterfeit, bandit state of "Israel" came into being.

But – "For my sword shall be bathed in heaven; behold, it shall come down upon Idumea, and upon the people of my curse, to judgement." "The sword of the Lord is filled with blood, it is made fat with fatness, and with the blood of lambs and goats, with the fat of the kidneys of rams: For the Lord hath a sacrifice in Bozrah, and a great slaughter in the land of Idumea." Isaiah, Chapter Thirty-Four, Verses 5 and 6.

Of course, this "Idumea" is but another way of saying Edom. Recall that collectively it is the accursed Canaanite tribes which make up Edom, or Idumea. Man may have a short memory span but God does not. To the racially sound element God says, "And the Gentiles shall see thy righteousness, and all kings thy glory: and thou shalt be called by a new name, which the mouth of the Lord shall name." (Chapter Sixty-Two, Verse 2.) And then this, "And ye shall leave your name for a curse unto my chosen: the Lord God shall slay thee, and call his servants by another name:" (Chapter Sixty-Five, Verse 15.)

This means that this "Jewish" nation which had comprised not only Whites but Canaanites as well was to be no more. The Whites would, as they always do, go on to form something new. The old name – Jews – would be left behind to the Canaanites alone.

"Keep silence before me, O islands; and let the people renew their strength: let them come near; then let them speak: let us come near together to judgement." That was from Isaiah, Chapter Thirty-Four, Verse 1. From an untenable position at the crossroads of three continents with no natural boundaries and to perfect geographic safety in the British Isles. Western Civilization would come to lead the world and the British Empire would lead all.

Into the present day: "But this is a people robbed and spoiled; they are all of them snared in holes, and they are hid in prison houses: they are for a prey, and none delivereth; for a spoil, and none saith, Restore," (Chapter Forty-Two, Verse 22.)

"For Jacob my servant's sake, and Israel mine elect, I have even called thee by thy name: I have surnamed thee, though thou hast not known me." "I am the Lord, and there is none else, there is no god beside me: I girded thee, though thou hast not known me:" "That thou may know from the rising of the sun, and from the west, that there is none beside me. I am the Lord, and there is none else." (Chapter Forty-Five, Verses 4, 5 and 6.)

It's coming and it's coming just like this:

"But these two things shall come to thee in a moment in one day, the loss of children, and widowhood: they shall come upon thee in their perfection for the multitude of thy sorceries (and this refers certainly to drug use and possibly to mass communication, possibly even industrial pollution), and for the great abundance of thine enchantments."

George Lincoln Rockwell
Israeli Embassy Picket, 1961

"For thou hast trusted in thy wickedness; thou hast said, None seeth me. Thy wisdom and thy knowledge, it hath perverted thee; and thou hast said in thine heart, I am, and none else beside me."

"Therefore shall evil come upon thee; thou shalt not know from whence it riseth: and mischief shall fall upon thee; thou shalt not be able to put it off; and desolation shall come upon thee suddenly, which thou shalt not know."

"Stand now with thine enchantments, and with the multitude of thy sorceries, wherein thou hast labored from thy youth; if so be thou shalt be able to profit if so be thou mayest prevail."

"Thou art wearied in the multitude of thy counsels. Let now the astrologers, the stargazers, the monthly prognosticators, stand up, and save thee from these things that shall come upon thee." Isaiah, Chapter Forty-Seven, Verses 9 through 13.

Part VII

As with earlier entries in this series, if the shoe fits, wear it. I'm certain there have always been those idealists who have despised their own times and this is understandable. But, as with any of the prophets – ancient or modern – one who knows anything at all about history will know that what is being described here can only fit peoples and cultures which have fully arrived at their dying stages. Nothing in between.

In my first book I struggled hard to outline the syndrome. I saw it as a matter of saturation. There may exist corruption at the top of any society and an underclass of "untouchables" – as was the case in ancient, Aryan India – across the bottom. Such was the case with the United States from following the Civil War until just after World War Two. In a chapter entitled, "The Poison and the Rot", I said that when these two pernicious elements "met in the middle", infecting the broad masses of Whites which ARE the society, death was at the door.

However, my prose cannot compare to that of Jeremiah...

"The priests said not, Where is the Lord? And they that handle the law knew me not: the pastors also transgressed against me, and the prophets prophesied by Baal, and walked after things that do not profit."

"Hath a nation changed their gods, which are not yet gods? But my people have changed their glory for that which doth not profit."

"For my people have committed two evils: they have forsaken me the fountain of living waters and hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water."

The above three verses are from Jeremiah, Chapter Two, Verses 8, 11 and 13.

Czar Nicholas II

He, along with his Family and millions of other White, Christian Russians, was murdered by Communist Jews after 1918.

This was a "racist" nation from its founding until just after the Second World War. A White society. And one which was apparently blessed from its inception above all other nations on earth. It could not fail. Then the deeply burrowed Jews at the top caused the foundations below to begin to absorb the heretofore strictly segregated and subjected colored element. Doing this played havoc with not only the fabric of the society but quite eviscerated the whole belief system, values and morals. And in the space of one generation, the new Promised Land gave way to the Whore of Babylon.

"Withhold thy foot from being unshod, and thy throat from thirst: but thou sadist, There is no hope: no; For I have loved strangers, and after them I will go." (Jeremiah, Chapter Two, Verse 25.)

These people here today absolutely know EVERYTHING. They can be told NOTHING. Come at them with this message – that of conspiracy and of race – and you are instantly beneath contempt. It is YOU who are the problem, in fact. Usually a person who is in the truth is outside of the system of lies and this will quite naturally be reflected in his social, educational and economic status. And these things, of course, are the entire measure of the person within today's materialistic world. One stands automatically discredited.

A lie dominates all. It covers the sky and the horizon. To these people, all is within the context of this lie. Should you be outside of the lie, you are anathema. Period. An "extremist". Within the truth in a world of lies. Only logical that it would be this way. But you've at least got God on your side even if everyone else has cut you loose.

They know it ALL. And yet they can do nothing about their apparent "Midas Touch" in reverse. Neither have they even the vision in most instances to recognize it as such. No hope.

"But where are thy gods that thou hast made thee? Let them arise, if they can save thee in the time of thy trouble: For according to the number of thy cities are thy gods, O Judah."

"In vain have I smitten your children; they received no correction: your own sword hath devoured your prophets, like a destroying lion." (Jeremiah, Chapter Two, Verses 28 and 30.)

The martyred George Lincoln Rockwell comes immediately to mind here but he could be accompanied by hundreds of others which, first, the system media would not allow you to hear and, second, were condemned to poverty, prison or death by system decree. Otherwise, what you were permitted to hear or know of them was calculatedly equated with insanity or criminality. So it has always been.

The system triumphant. Now let's see what they can do with it, against God.

"Also in thy skirts is found the blood of the souls of the poor innocents: I have not found it by secret search, but upon all these."

"Only acknowledge thine iniquity, that thou hast transgressed against the Lord thy God, and hast scattered thy ways to the strangers under every green tree, and ye have not obeyed my voice, saith the Lord."

"They have healed also the hurt of the daughter of my people slightly, saying Peace, Peace; when there is no peace." (Jeremiah, Chapter Two, Verse 34; Chapter Three, Verse 13; and Chapter Six, Verse 14.)

The "One-Verse Charlies" can't even see themselves for what they are even when they read of it in the Bible. They will run with the system hounds in persecuting the truth and imagine they are doing the Lord's work.

"Were they ashamed when they had committed abomination? Nay, they were not at all ashamed, neither could they blush: therefore they shall fall among them that fall: at the time that I visit them they shall be cast down, saith the Lord." (Jeremiah, Chapter Six, Verse 15.)

Certainly if one could see and acknowledge their error and take remedial action, they might affect a positive change. But here, today, abomination is sanctioned by Church and by State, inculcated by school and by media. The correct path is ridiculed and, once again, criminalized. Where is the hope? These people only know how to throw more gasoline on the fire, play pretend, and take pride in their own folly. While we, of the movement, have always been mere "lunatics" and "haters".

"Therefore pray not thou for this people, neither lift up cry nor prayer for them, neither make intercession to me: For I will not hear thee." (Jeremiah, Chapter Seven, Verse 16.)

When I take time to explain the physical – as distinct from any so-called "spiritual" – dynamics of the way this works to fellow prisoners who are really downcast by their circumstances, it does have an effect on them. Sometimes they ask, "Yes, but suppose those in power don't see it or don't care." It's answered right on its face: Of course they don't realize it. As Charles Manson would comment, maybe if they could see their own game, they wouldn't play it.

But they CAN'T see it. It changes nothing. They – with all power – will be caught wondering why.

"But they bearkened not, nor inclined their ear, but walked in the counsels and in the imagination of their evil heart, and went backward, and not forward." (Jeremiah, Chapter Seven, Verse 24.)

"Then said the prophet Jeremiah unto Hananiah the prophet, Hear now, Hananiah; the Lord hath not sent thee; but thou makest this people to trust in a lie." (Jeremiah, Chapter Twenty-Eight, Verse 15.) And there you have ALL of your mainstream, Judea-Christian priests and ministers, ALL of your "televangelists", etc. All of them in it for the formality of it, for the bucks.

As Judah was about to fall the same way Israel had fallen earlier, "Zedekiah the king said unto Jeremiah, I am afraid of the Jews that are fallen to the Chaldeans, lest they deliver me into their hand, and they mock me." (Jeremiah, Chapter Thirty-Eight, Verse 19.) The grip of cold terror. Too late. What of the rest of the populace? Tough.

This terror had to be related to the kind of terror experienced by Czar Nicholas II of Russia – of the Tribe of Asher – as he and his family were first taken prisoner by the Jewish Bolsheviks in 1917 and then murdered by them in 1918, princesses and all.

The Old Testament closes with the prophets at around the year 500 B.C. One may wonder why the story doesn't carry on straight through to the time of Christ five hundred years later. Well, it used to until one point in the Nineteenth Century when those books – collectively known as the Apocrypha – were taken out of the King James version of the Bible. They are readily available today through any good book source.

In reading through the books of the Apocrypha myself, I saw that the reason they were removed was because the goings-on that they dealt with did not truly involve the people of Israel. Most of what was left in that area following 500 B.C. was of the non-white, truly Jewish variety. Israel itself, the Twelve White Tribes, had left and was now in Europe. Some of Judah was still present and some of Benjamin would actually return for the time being.

The Stone of Destiny or Jacob's Pillow Genesis 28:18

What little bit of this period, and just the very outset of that, as remains in the King James Bible is reflected in lines such as this: "Even men, and women, and children, and the kings daughters, and every person that Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard had left with Gedaliah the son of Abikam the son of Shaphan, and Jeremiah the prophet, and Baruch the son of Neriab."

"So they came into the land of Egypt: for they obeyed not the voice of the Lord: thus came they even to Tahpanhes." (Jeremiah, Chapter Forty-Three, Verses 6 and 7.)

Though Judah and Jerusalem did fall to the Babylonians, though the last king and his princes were killed, the Temple burned (to remove its gold inlay), and the population deported, Jeremiah, his scribe Baruch and the royal princesses escaped to Egypt. Along with them went the sandstone block, "Jacob's Pillow", from Genesis, Chapter Twenty-Eight, Verses 10 through 18.

Ancient Irish records from the same period tell of the arrival of a venerable holy man, his assistant and two princesses along with a sacred stone there by boat.

Princess Tea Tephi married the Irish king thus reuniting the divided House of Judah – Pharez and Zarah – or the House of David, and the line has descended from that time until now through Ireland, to Scotland and to England over "The Land of the Covenant", or Britain.

And always the Stone of Destiny, or Jacob's Pillow, has been present at each coronation ceremony since that time.

Part VIII

The Book of Ezekiel is another major book of the Old Testament. Unique because it is the one which Erich von Daniken relies upon so heavily for many of his illustrations to support his theory of direct extraterrestrial involvement in the affairs of man during those times.

It was from Ezekiel's fantastic description that one aeronautical engineer designed a model of a flying machine which theoretically could have flown. No man of technology himself, Ezekiel could only call it as he saw it using the best terminology he possessed. Some postulate that this same phenomenon is repeated in Jonah with the "whale" and, most certainly, in Revelation with all the incredible sights that John records.

Were they each "high" on drugs, were they delirious from imprisonment or starvation, were they simply lying – or did they really see and encounter something? And if they saw something which was real, what exactly was it? "The Angel of the Lord"? Undoubtedly. But if we are to fully understand what is going on here, we've got to be more precise than that.

Whatever it was, this is how their "visions" concerning the future were imparted to them, that is, at the time of these appearances or encounters.

Ezekiel was being held in what was the ancient version of a displaced persons center, or a "concentration camp" somewhere in Babylonia when he saw a "whirlwind out of the north," "a great cloud with a fire enfolding it, amber in color." (Ezekiel, Chapter One, Verse 4.) Then he goes on to describe in the greatest detail what I can only take to have been a spaceship module designed for short hops around the surface of the earth. Too lengthy to even begin to reproduce here, you need to read it for yourself and judge on your own.

"And the spirit entered into me when he spake unto me, and set me upon my feet, that I heard him that spake unto me." (Ezekiel, Chapter Two, Verse 2.)

Was Ezekiel all alone when this took place? How could none of the rest have seen this as well? Or maybe they did and it simply scared the hell out of them, causing them to panic and to flee. How some of today's "close encounters" may be recalled tomorrow, because, for the present, they are tightly suppressed or roundly ridiculed. Remember, many will be called but few will be chosen.

As to our own seemingly hapless mission here today, Ezekiel was given these words, "Yet if thou warn the wicked, and he turn not from his wickedness, or from his wicked way, he shall die in his iniquity, but thou hast delivered thy soul." (Ezekiel, Chapter Three, Verse 19.) Judging from the reception we've been receiving in the decades during which I've been part of this movement, only the tiniest few are somehow "programmed" to respond to the Word. This will happen according to plan, regardless of the efforts or lack of them, regardless of the aid or interference of anyone or anything.

Our efforts are for our own benefit and not, as most mistakenly suppose, for the purpose of "building a party", etc. If we don't take this action then we are no better than any of the rest.

"Yet will I leave a remnant, that ye may have some that shall escape the sword among the nations, when ye shall be scattered through the countries." (Ezekiel, Chapter Six, Verse 8.)

And so is alluded to the beginnings of this last, great migration of Aryans from out of the Mid-East and into Europe where a brilliant future lay in store once all the filth and poison has been beaten and erased from the people of Israel, once they have left their tainted past behind. Like walking out of a living nightmare.

"Mischief shall come upon mischief, and rumour shall be upon rumour; then shall they seek a vision of the prophet; but the law shall perish from the priest, and counsel from the ancients," (Ezekiel, Chapter Seven, Verse 26.)

Most who are reading this should have some appreciation of the kind of non-answers one may expect should they be so naive as to approach any of these ministers or professional counselors today and ask any truly relevant or penetrating question. You'll be advised as to how best to fit yourself more snugly into the abominable lie. "Easy believe". The truth is not easy but it is infinitely more satisfying.

"And the Lord said unto him, Go through the midst of the city, through the midst of Jerusalem, and set a mark upon the foreheads of the men that sigh and that cry for all the abominations that be done in the midst thereof."

"And to the others he said in mine hearing, Go ye after him through the city, and smite: let not your eye spare, neither have ye pity:"

"Slay utterly old and young, both maids, and little children, and women: but come not near any man upon whom is the mark; and begin at my sanctuary. Then they began at the ancient men which were before the house."

(Ezekiel, Chapter Nine, Verses 4, 5 and 6.)

What would such a mark be today? I'm instantly reminded of the Swastika which Charles Manson impressed into his own forehead. This he did so as to prevent his being claimed as one of those part of the Jewish-inspired "Hippie" movement. At that, it was those arrests and trials that formally ended the movement of the "Hippies" while, as the system's own mouthpieces today claim, Manson's own influence and renown have never been greater. (The great Charles Manson has recently gone on to his own reward.)

Those who recall the period will also remember it as the so-called "Peace" movement. "To wit, the prophets of Israel which prophesy concerning Jerusalem, and which see visions of peace for her, and there is no peace, saith the Lord God." (Ezekiel, Chapter Thirteen, Verse 16.)

Manson. "Son of man, cause Jerusalem to know her abomination."

"And say, thus saith the Lord God unto Jerusalem; Thy birth and thy nativity is of the land of Canaan; thy father was an Amorite, and thy mother was an Hittite." (Ezekiel, Chapter Sixteen, Verses 2 and 3.)

Fully one thousand years had elapsed from God's first warnings against Israel mixing with these people. God and the truth being the same, they do not change – ever. There is no accommodation with the lie regardless of any passage of time. There is no such thing as a successful compromise with the lie. It is rather that the truth comes to be seen as increasingly alien and bizarre as the center shifts ever further off base. However, again, truth is not affected, only those who go against it.

We keep speaking of the lie. What exactly is this lie? It is the proposition that man can write his own laws, adjusting them to conform to an ever-sinking situation in order to manage and justify it and himself – and expect to get away with it forever. Adrift. And with grave dangers all about. An arrangement like this can only go one way.

Most specifically, "creating new citizens" out of racial strangers, mingling the customs and the blood – "go a whoring after strange gods" – and not expecting to have a price to pay for it. Cause and effect. Action and reaction. The very name of God himself: YHWH, in the Hebrew characters, or Yahweh, "I Am That I Am", "I Will Be What I Will Be", "There Only Is What There Is". Belief, religion and superstition be damned. There only is what there is and you are either with it or against it.

Everything then is twisted and contorted in attempt to force it to conform to the basic, original lie. As things as a result go increasingly wrong there evolves a tightening, a stiffening on the part of the powers which be in attempt to exact a little more mileage out of the rotten mess. No repentance. A war against God.

And it is all in the name of money, one manifestation of the new and strange gods: Mammon. Greater wealth for those who are the most skillful at selling their services to the Satanic System. Money, banking, high finance, speculation, high interest, USURY... "Hath given forth upon usury, and hath taken increase: shall he then live? He shall not live; he hath done all these abominations; he shall surely die; his blood shall be upon him." (Ezekiel, Chapter Eighteen, Verse 13.)

"In thee have they taken gifts to shed blood; thou hast taken usury and increase, and thou hast greedily gained of thy neighbors by extortion, and hast forgotten me, saith the Lord God."

"And I will scatter thee among the heathen, and disperse thee in the countries, and will consume thy filthiness out of thee." (Ezekiel, Chapter Twenty-Two, Verses 12 and 15.)

These "heathens" were the rest of the Whites already living in Europe with their pagan – yet thoroughly Aryan – ways and customs. (And it might be well to point out at this time that the terms "pagan" and "heathen" mean the same thing, i.e., a person or persons from the countryside not accustomed or attuned to city or sophisticated ways.)

The comparison alone between the huge – even by today's standards – population at that time compressed as it was into such a tiny geographic area – full of racial aliens – meant automatically that the people of Israel had gone "cosmopolitan", just as with any major city dweller here today. To go even further, with the advent of mass media, there is no hamlet anywhere today left untouched by this foul spirit of cosmopolitanism.

From Ezekiel, Chapter Twenty-Five, Verse 2, "Son of man, set thy face against the Ammonites, and prophecy against them;" Also the Moabites, Edomites and Philistines are taken up: "And I will execute great vengeance upon them with furious rebukes; and they shall know that I am the Lord, when I shall lay my vengeance upon them." (Ezekiel, Chapter Twenty-Five, Verse 17.) Bear in mind always that these groupings represented then and still represent today what commonly and collectively are called Jews.

From Chapter Thirty, Verse 5, "Ethiopia, and Libya, and Lydia, and all the mingled people, and Chub, and the men of the land that is in league, shall fall with them by the sword."

Chapter Thirty-Two, Verse 29, "There is Edom, her kings, and all her princes, which with their might are laid by them that were slain by the sword: they shall lie with the uncircumcised, and with them that go down the pit." Again, it is critical to understand that Edom and Idumea meant then and mean now what are known as racial Jews.

Chapter Thirty-Five, Verse 15, "As thou didst rejoice at the inheritance of the house of Israel, because it was desolate, so will I do unto thee: thou shalt be desolate, O mount Seir, and all Idumea, and all of it: and they shall know that I am the Lord."

My own former ignorance to not only the existence of all this but its literal, living meaning in the world today – despite my awareness of this same background activity that explains why things are the way they are at present – is by itself the most stinging indictment of and rebuke against the efficacy of the "One-Verse Charlies" who are charged with the guidance and enlightenment of the people.

To point any of this out to them or anyone else, though it is part of the Bible itself, is to be regarded as a boorish trouble-maker. Only those verses so general as to not threaten the lie are to be brought up. A complete deception and waste of time. This is not a search for truth and understanding, it is a vain attempt to mold everything within the context of a contrivance, a superstition. And the results for a society guided by this are clear.

Thomas Robert Malthus

To be an "extremist", to hold to the truth no matter how "inconvenient", "unpopular", "unprofitable", "reprehensible", "disreputable" or even "dangerous" it might be in today's world of lies is the challenge. If somehow everyone could become enlightened and aware of all this, would everyone then be an "extremist" by definition? No. The lie would then be dispelled, truth would reign and there might exist a just world.

Those who, even unwittingly, as if by instinct alone, have been true to the word of the Bible all along, while imagining themselves to have been at odds with its message due to the gross misrepresentations of the "One-Verse Charlies" who control the Church are the true faithful. But they need to realize it. The few of us somehow girded against falsehood and the vast majority of the rest who have fallen prey to it. The work of the lie and its willing servants. The state that the world is in.

Would this not prove out the dynamics of how an entire people could lose all track of their own, ancient, traditional beliefs and heritage – once the FORM of them had gone rotten – and then be left to drift and wander, at the mercy of the alien media masters, with only those as who are fit and able to literally reinvent and rediscover these traditions but under a different name and a different symbol, in a new time and a new place, to be able to stand forth against the ever-encroaching, worldly, dominant lie.

The returning is the confirmation.

Magic?

Probably as close as it gets to that.

Part VIX

The books of the minor prophets. These continue in the same vein as the major prophets though not at the same great length.

Much talk is given in the Old and New Testaments to false prophets. In Jeremiah we even saw him confronting one false prophet directly. (But it was, after all, Jeremiah who was cast down the abandoned well.)

As Judah's fate was almost upon it, with the Babylonians surrounding Jerusalem for the final siege, the rulers were frantically looking for some sign – any sign – of salvation. Naturally, the "house" or "kept" prophets were always standing by to blow a little sunshine if that seemed to be the thing to do at the moment. Jeremiah, however, told it exactly as it was – none too pretty – and took the consequences for it.

Prophecy is a risky game. False prophets were to be stoned to death. How many times within this movement have I read of "the end" being pin-pointed or otherwise described over the course of the last three decades? Looks extremely bad. Plays absolute hell with overall credibility. I say the "end" came long ago. We are now living in the "mopping up" stage, with only the chucking of the mop water still to come. People somehow seem only to anticipate the anti-climax, again, missing the point entirely.

That end was in 1945. That was the worst there ever was, equaling and surpassing the worst recorded in the Bible. And you missed it because the media masters chose to paint it as a great "victory" for humanity and civilization. But that was where life died as far as Godly society is concerned. It's been nothing but rot and decay since that time. (And do not point to technology and materialism.)

One-Verse Charlies

Federal Reformatory
Chillicothe, Ohio

As I write these words, the big build-up is for the year 2000. I hate to disappoint but that has already – in reality – come and gone for Jesus' birthdate was September 6th, in the year 4 B.C. (As of the re-editing of this, the so-called "Y2K" hype has also come and gone.) World War III? One more meaningless blurb as even our limited history records quite a number of conflicts going back centuries that could be considered global. The "world wars" of the Twentieth Century were in fact but another European civil war which took a rest and then went into continuation.

Many of the "experts" imagined the Soviet Union was the "Gog and Magog" of the Bible and would move against the bandit, counterfeit state of "Israel", precipitating a world nuclear holocaust. And it looked like a very good bet for quite a long time except that one had to know that the real Gog-Magog IS the scattered racial Jews of the world and that they'd hardly be expected to attack their own, Zionist enclave in the Middle East. Then too, since 1945, "East" and "West" have merely represented two arms on the same hairy body. The threat of "World War III" was strictly for the sucker trade.

I've said that we exist today in a deathly but pregnant silence following the shattering conclusion of what is called World War Two. Only slow deterioration – picking up momentum all the time – for the fabric of God's people, Satan in full command over the globe (i.e., Jewish dictatorship), no place to run or escape, technology to rival God's own, etc. A modern-day Tower of Babel situation, begging – demanding – to be smashed to bits.

Many horrific things are set to occur. For one, the Malthusian Limit: Between deforestation, pollution and over population, the strain becomes too great for the earth to bear any longer and it strikes back with famine, disease, natural cataclysms, etc. to drastically cut back and bring into line what man in his foolishness has allowed to get out of control. Regions of the Third World together with most metropolitan areas will feel the heaviest brunt of this. Need I point out what type of humanity would primarily experience the effects of such a tremendous pruning back as this?

Then too, what would occur should the "gas balloon" economy of the world suddenly burst?

But beyond things like this there are only two matters that we need to concern ourselves with: The situation as it stands with the "cup of iniquity" fast filling to the brim; And, the promised settling of accounts as outlined in the Bible. One thing about all this is certain: "No man knows the hour." To presume to know the hour is to fly directly in the face of the Word itself. The next five minutes or the next five hundred years. No matter. In historic terms it truly is imminent.

Beginning with the Book of Daniel, we may read and judge how imminent it actually is –

"Then the king commanded to call the magicians, and the astrologers, and the sorcerers, and the Chaldeans, for show the king his dreams." (Daniel, Chapter Four, Verse 7.)

Something that happened with Daniel helps clarify what may have taken place with Ezekiel –

"Then I lifted up mine eyes, and looked, and behold a certain man clothed in linen, whose loins were girded with fine gold of Uphaz;"

"His body was also like the beryl, and his face as the appearance of lightning, and his eyes as lamps of fire, and his arms and his feet like in colour to polished brass, and the voice of his words like the voice of a multitude."

"And I Daniel alone saw the vision: for the men that were with me saw not the vision; but a great quaking fell upon them, so that they fled to hide themselves." (Daniel, Chapter Ten, Verses 5, 6 and 7.)

Well, what Daniel has just said is that the other men DID most certainly see something and it was of a nature of something the likes of which they'd not seen before to the extent that they ran away. So, by this, we may know that it was NOT "all in his head".

It's one thing to predict the likely course of the near future. What Daniel did was to lay out the exact course of not only the immediate future but that of the next thousand years to come. The arrival of the Persians, the Greeks and the Romans. To me it is obvious that Daniel was SHOWN all of this in his "vision" as it was literally brought back from the future by these space-faring time-travelers.

The Book of Hosea continues –

"My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge: because thou hast rejected knowledge, I will also reject thee, that thou shalt be no priest to me: seeing thou hast forgotten the law of thy God, I will also forget thy children." (Hosea, Chapter Four, Verse 6.)

"They have dealt treacherously against the Lord: for they have begotten strange children: now shall a month devour them with their portions." (Hosea, Chapter Five, Verse 7.)

Recalling that the ancient Tribes of Israel did not vanish but did evolve to become the great nations of modern Europe, Hosea offers incredible words that could just as easily fit the plight of England just as it was about to commit suicide by going to war against Germany in 1939. (Remember that Ephraim became England.)

"Ephraim, he hath mixed himself among the people; Ephraim is a cake not turned."

"Strangers have devoured his strength, and he knoweth it not; yea, gray hair are here and there upon him, yet he knoweth not." (Hosea, Chapter Seven, Verses 8 and 9.)

From Chapter Eight, Verse 7, "For they have sown the wind, and they shall reap the whirlwind: it hath no stalk: the bud shall yield no meal: if so it be yield, the strangers shall swallow it up."

We have a bit of a problem similar to this with more of these "strangers" here today.

Moving on along to the Book of Joel, Chapter Three, Verse 19, "Egypt shall be a desolation, and Edom shall be a desolate wilderness, for the violence against the children of Judah, because they have shed innocent blood in their land."

From the Book of Amos, Chapter Five, Verses 8, 10 and 12 through 15, "Seek him that maketh the seven stars (the Pleiades) and Orion, and turneth the shadow of death into the morning, and maketh the day dark with night: that calleth for the waters of the sea, and poureth them out upon the face of the earth: the Lord is his name:"

"They hate him that rebuketh in the gate, and they abhor him that speaketh uprightly."

"For I know your manifold transgressions and your mighty sins: they afflict the just, they take a bribe, and they turn aside the poor in the gate from their right."

"Therefore the prudent shall keep silence in that time: for it is an evil time."

"Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live; and so the Lord, the God of hosts, shall be with you, as ye have spoken."

"Hate the evil, and love the good, and establish judgement in the gate: it may be that the Lord God of hosts will be gracious unto the remnant of Joseph."

Adolf Hitler
Kampfzeit Period

Now from the Book of Amos, Chapter Five, Verses 18 through 23, "Woe unto you that desire the day of the Lord! To what end is it for you? The day of the Lord is a darkness and not light."

"As if a man did flee from a lion, and a bear met him; or went into the house, and leaned his hand on the wall, and a serpent bit him."

"Shall not the day of the Lord be darkness, and not light? Even very dark, and no brightness in it?"

"I hate, I despise your feast days, and I will not smell in your solemn assemblies."

"Though you offer me burnt offerings, I will not accept them; neither will I regard the peace offerings of your fat beasts."

"Take though away from me the noise of the songs, for I will not bear the melody of thy viols."

This is extremely heavy stuff for, after all, why would a living God want to hear or acknowledge the pleadings of a people who are so utterly stupid, deluded and – worst – conceited about it as to imagine the follies and abominations which they regularly and routinely practice reflect him or his will? He's telling them that they are on their own in this and that the chips are about to fall.

The Book of Obadiah takes up the matter of Edom-Esau again. Once more, by this stage in the Bible these had become basically the same as the Jews we know today. They are "citizens", they pass for "White" or "brothers" but they are not. Their involvement in the destruction of Israel then and now – as they dig the grave of Western Civilization – was and is instrumental. As long as pure blood exists, they are shown to be the bastards that they are. Hate, envy and jealousy. They stole the mantle of "God's Chosen" after true Israel abandoned the area and the belief system along with it that had become so hopelessly besmirched in order to be purged of their evil influence and to this day they retain it even while they spearhead the crash drive for "racial integration" in order to finish the job of bastardization left undone twenty-five hundred years ago.

God is making it plain over and over that he sees this, knows this and is going to make an abrupt end to it. What else really could or would matter? Some manner of pure bunk as given to you by the "One-Verse Charlies"? Some garbage wherein all races unite by denying their own natures through pretending hard to fall in line with a false and impossible doctrine, Judeo-Christianity? The world may be fooled but God isn't.

They give their own game away by offering you in their churches your choice: A poster of Jesus as a White or a poster of Jesus as a Black. They are not just saying that they don't really know or care WHAT Jesus was, they are coming right out with the statement that it DOESN'T MATTER to them as that image is only a FRONT for their voodooistic superstition!

Something about the Israelites going to join the other, fellow Aryans then sitting dormant in Europe turned out to be like two chemicals coming together to react in a mighty explosion. From the fall of Atlantis to this point it has been a slow decay, a steady retreat. Now a sudden rebirth was getting ready to take place, a bursting forth from out of Europe to reclaim the planet. But only after the "Lost Tribes" are settled in place and only after the advent of Jesus of Nazareth has managed to return all of this Word back into their hands.

From the Book of Micah, Chapters Four and Five, "In that day, saith the Lord, will I assemble her that halteth, and I will gather her that was cast far off a strong nation: and the Lord shall reign over them in mount of Zion from henceforth, even for ever."

"And the remnant of Joseph shall be in the midst of many people as a dew from the Lord, as the showers upon the grass, that tarrieth not for man, nor waiteth for the sons of men."

"And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles (that is the rest of the uncircumcised Whites) in the midst of many people as a lion among the beasts of the forest, as a young lion among the flocks of sheep: who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and teareth in pieces, and none can deliver."

From 500 B.C. until the present day, who but the White Europeans, carrying their Christian Bible, could even begin to fit a description like that?

From the Book of Zechariah, Chapter Ten, Verse 9, "And I will sow them among the people: and they shall remember me in far countries; and they shall live with their children, and turn again."

Death of Mussolini

Part X

The Son of man conceived of an unwed, teenage mother. Charles Manson born to Kathleen Maddox in Cincinnati, Ohio, November 11th, 1934. (Housed at the federal reformatory during 1952 at Chillicothe, Ohio, where and when your present writer was born. He was known to two of my uncles who were part of the staff. When, in 1981, after arrangements had been made for Manson to telephone me collect from prison in Vacaville, California, and I had accepted the charges from the operator, his first words were, "Boy, it sure sounds like Ohio.")

The point? The magic doesn't stop there at the end of the Bible. A tremendous lesson is contained there but it's a mistake to think that "special" and extraordinary things can't still occur, that extraordinary people don't still arise. How mundane were the times of the gospels. How epoch-making are recent decades. People are really blind in their perception. Belief is either living or its dead. If it isn't in the "now", as Manson would say, then you may be certain it is dead.

The times of Jesus of Nazareth. The events of the Old Testament that we have been recounting in the previous chapters were as distant in time to the people of Jesus' day as Christopher Columbus is to us today. Judea since then had been but a minor province under, first, the Persians, then the Greeks and now the Romans.

The Herodian kings were the nominal rulers under the Roman governors. And these kings were Idumean Jews – racial enemies of Israel who had been propped up by the occupying Romans for the sake of easier governing. The religion of the people was already deeply sunk into the form we know it as today: Judaism. Jewish rabbis were hard at work twisting the Word of God to conform to their own peculiar bent through their "interpretations" which were being collected into the Babylonian Talmud. The actual remnant of Israel in the Holy Land was now a racial minority.

Not by accident then is the genealogy of Jesus given within the gospels twice – both forward and backward – that it might be known with certainty that here was a man of Israel, of Judah, and not one of these accursed, Canaanite "strangers" who now infested the land. (Matthew, Chapter One, Verses 1 through 17; and Luke, Chapter Three, Verses 23 through 38.) We are approximately one generation removed from where the demographics here will equate theirs then. Of course, within most major cities it has already passed that point. So if you think it's bad now, just wait.

The whole point to Jesus' coming where and when he did was that not anywhere on earth was there a spark of the truth alive and in the daily life of the people. It is now just as it was then. Yesterday's Pharisees are today's Christians. Belief itself is dead, invalid, twisted, evil. That and the formerly White societies are completely overrun with coloreds of every nationality.

Elisabeth, older cousin of Mary, was first to be visited by an angel and to conceive immaculately, later giving birth to John the Baptist. (Luke, Chapter One.) When asked during adulthood whether he was the Messiah, he responded that he was not, that he only prepared the way for the one who would come after him. (Luke, Chapter Three, Verse 16.)

During the 1920s, during the Kampfzeit period of the movement in Germany, someone asked Adolf Hitler the same question. Hitler's response at that time was that he had waited as long as he felt he could for someone to step forward and take the situation in hand. No one had. But he also said that he knew it was his task to make the world stage ready for the one who would be the LAST.

One of the gospels has the angel "coming in unto" Mary. This hardly sounds immaculate but no matter. From the time the story was written until practically the present day, man knew nothing of artificial insemination. But apparently someone knew. An extra dose of the Godlike strain? Joseph was instructed to legitimize the infant just as one surnamed Manson did much later on as, in both times, birth out of wedlock was extremely bad news.

We're told in the gospels of the Star of Bethlehem, of the shepherds and the wise men. The star, or the convergence, as it most probably was in reality, apparently has been confirmed and identified using modern computer techniques to plot the skies as they were two thousand years ago. Something very real prompted Herod the king to order the systematic murder of all male infants under the age of two in the region of Bethlehem. It was a head-on attempt to forestall the well-known prophecy of the coming Messiah which was for Israel and not Idumea, which, for all intents and purposes Palestine had now become. It was racially motivated. Infanticide: A typically Jewish device. (And a typically Jewish gambit, to think that by such action what was already written could be altered.)

First the young family was instructed to seek refuge in Egypt while the slaughter in Judea took its course. Then they were later instructed to carefully make their way back into Galilee, the last stronghold of Whites, true Israelites, in the area, where the boy Jesus would be protected.

We enjoy a tantalizing snippet from the youth of Jesus where he is seen in the Temple in Jerusalem amazing the elders there with his wisdom at about the age of twelve. (Luke, Chapter Two, Verses 42 through 49.) Apart from that, the Bible records nothing of him until he reappears in Judea in his late twenties where his final passion takes place.

The "Lost Years" of Jesus. Evidence and tradition place him part of that time in Egypt, studying with the priests there. And the remainder spent studying with the Druids of southern England – all of them exponents of the same Atlantean, or cosmic wisdom. Druid, Magi – the same thing. Throughout this phase of his life, Jesus was under the auspices of his wealthy uncle, Joseph of Arimathea, who, from Judea, owned tin mines in the area of Cornwall, southern England. Britain, in effect, a colony of ancient Israel, and soon to become one more domain of the Roman Empire just as Judea itself. It was there and then that Jesus personally laid the groundwork for Britain to become the very first Christian realm, and not Ethiopia as is claimed today.

The nature of this study and this work was to gain all of the knowledge that had previously been known to man but now was in imminent danger of being lost due to the sinking of man's wisdom into superstition. As for the purpose of the appearance of both John the Baptist and Jesus, we can read from Luke, Chapter One, Verses 71 through 74, "That we should be saved from our enemies, and from the hand of all that hate us;"

"To perform the mercy promised to our fathers, and to remember his holy covenant;"

"The oath which we swore to our father Abraham,"

"That he would grant unto us, that we being delivered out of the hand of our enemies might serve him without fear,"

A pretty limited and clear-cut, if challenging, task. Nothing short of national liberation. An oppressed minority of Whites unable to BE White or express themselves as Whites because of an alien domination. And the enemy which hated them? The Romans? No. The racial Jews.

Adolf Hitler's political aims were similarly well-defined and concrete: To break the chains of national slavery of the Versailles Treaty; to prevent the German people from literally starving; to unite all Germans in a common homeland; And to destroy Bolshevism. This program put him right in the path of World Jewry. Because of this, in order to accomplish his program, it was required to not only take on the combined military might of the rest of the world but to see the entire German nation crucified.

And yet, despite everything, today most of Hitler's original program is accomplished fact.

John the Baptist was foully murdered in prison at the whim of the Jews then in power – racial and spiritual kin to the filthy, degenerate types holding power here today – for having dared to point out to them their violations of the law they were supposed to be upholding. (Matthew, Chapter Fourteen, Verses 1 through 12.)

Jesus commences his ministry in full earnest and first thing off the bat Satan offers to put him to work for him at excellent wages and benefits. "Satan" being the Biblical allegory for Jewry, we wonder whether he wasn't literally approached – someone having recognized his undeniable ability – by representatives of those holding all power and money to join with the general sell-out of Whites, exactly as with these modern politicians today. Had he accepted he certainly would have saved his life. But what would he have lost? In any event, he reversed the course of history by fulfilling his appointed role.

The Sermon on the Mount, especially, could only have been marveled at as a monument to esoteric and even contradictory thought – and largely rejected on that basis – until most recently when Whites are discovering themselves in a circumstance that hasn't existed for them since Jesus first spoke those words. Minus those circumstances, that CONTEXT, those words were impossible to relate to.

Those of this remnant of Jacob – the last Whites – who are true find themselves struggling in the darkness, subject to a society and a political system that represents, literally, the very BEAST itself. To a people and a society that are even remotely one with itself and its government, those words on the mount are nothing but contradiction – even subversive. But to a few who are striving against the dominant and alien Satanic System – which is what controls today – they represent sage guidelines and words of supreme assurance. They are nothing short of a blueprint for spiritual guerrilla warfare. A design for survival.

Those pompous Pharisees of today who insist that the "embarrassing" passages of the Old Testament – those that we in such bad taste have brought to light – were somehow laid to rest with the advent of Jesus, do go against Jesus' own pronouncements on the matter.

From Matthew, Chapter Five, Verses 17 and 18, "Think not that I am come to destroy the law or the prophets: I am not come to destroy but to fulfill."

"For verily I say unto you, Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled."

So much of the gist of Jesus' message as it involved tactics is bound up in these two obscure verses, utterly neglected by the "One-Verse Charlies" Matthew, Chapter Five, Verses 25 and 26, "Agree with thine adversary quickly, whiles thou art in the way with him; lest at any time the adversary deliver thee to the judge, and the judge deliver thee to the officer, and thou be cast into prison."

"Verily I say unto thee, Thou shalt by no means come out thence, till thou hast paid the uttermost farthing."

This too was almost meaningless until "our government" transmogrified into the present Pig System. The modern term for this condition is "litigious". Now you can't control your own wife or child without someone dialing "911" and your being arrested. Now, once you're caught up in the system, any real consideration of "justice", "right", "wrong", "fair play" or even common sense vanishes. You are in the machine, the "prison-industrial complex", representing livelihoods for hundreds of thousands of useless parasites. They will milk the circumstance – and you – for all it's worth.

Jesus is admonishing the individual to discipline himself, to adopt a sober and realistic attitude that, if he cannot deal effectively with his own affairs, then the State will step in. And the State is very easy to get involved but extremely difficult to be rid of. The point: While thus bogged down with the State apparatus, all of one's energies are tied up and wasted as regards any truly positive effort.

Manson's line was almost exact. To offer up resistance either to a fool or to superior force is a stupid waste of time at best and suicidal insanity at worst. A healthy society where all truly are brothers and the government truly is of the people, and this philosophy is not only out of place but is, again, subversive. However, within a totally alienated society that is ruled over by a tyranny, one needs to tread very lightly, as though on eggshells, just for the sake of longevity alone. The striking thing is that my generation has witnessed this condition, detailed in the gospels, to return to arise here in this place.

The part-timers, the hobbyists that we of the movement have known only too well are also taken up by Jesus in terms that no one could begin to understand unless they themselves were found within those same circumstances. Even today, work a steady job on the outside and have to hide your movement affiliation lest your boss fire you. An impossible handicap at any time. Jesus' famous quote, "No man can serve two masters: "Ye cannot serve God and mammon." (Matthew, Chapter Six, Verse 24.)

It was once that one could fool himself into thinking he could do this very thing. But that was back before the system really began to reveal its nature and the division became so acute. Again, words that did not apply practically only scant decades ago now assume prime significance. Indeed, unless criminal activity be involved, why have to conceal one's beliefs or associations in the so-called "land of the free"?

That is unless, of course, it is rather a case of "the leaven of the Pharisees" – HYPOCRISY. (Matthew, Chapter Sixteen, Verse 11.)

The transfiguration of Jesus on the mountain when he took Peter, John and James along with him. At one point they witnessed as his very countenance changed, then perceived him in the company of Moses and Elijah. A similar thing happened with the young Adolf Hitler immediately following a performance of Wagner's "Rienzi" in Hitler's home town of Linz, Austria. August Kubizek, Hitler's boyhood friend, accompanied him to the edge of town where he climbed to the top of the Freinberg alone. When he descended, he was a changed person according to Kubizek. In later years, Hitler confided to Kubizek, "In that hour it began."

From Matthew, Chapter Six, Verse 31, "Therefore take no thought saying, What shall we eat? Or, What shall we drink? Or, Wherewithal shall we be clothed?"

From Luke, Chapter Eight, Verses 1, 2 and 3, "And it came to pass afterward, that he went throughout every village and city preaching and showing glad tidings of the kingdom of God: and the twelve were with him,"

"And certain women, which had been healed of evil spirits and infirmities, Mary called Magdalene, out of whom went seven devils,"

"And Joanna the wife of Chuzza Herod's steward, and Susanna, and many others, which ministered unto him of their substance."

The foregoing might just as well have been excerpted from "Helter Skelter", describing the goings on of the Manson family over the course of its own three-year life span. The cross-country tour in the VW bus, the young women from the good homes whose heads Manson was able by his personality to straighten out, the hospitality of wealthy acquaintances like the Beach Boys, at other times the dumpster diving, the squatting at the Spahn Ranch and then, later, at the Barker Ranch. And always the preponderance of women over men.

In John, Chapter Two, a wedding is described having taken place in Galilee, Jesus' own home territory where he could feel absolutely safe, at which Jesus, the disciples, and his mother Mary all were present. The prose is carefully couched in such a fashion – between the high good humor and the apparent absence of any identified bridegroom – that some have speculated this was Jesus' own wedding to Mary Magdalene. Indeed, his mother urged him to produce wine for the guests and this would properly be the role of the bridegroom.

Charles Manson and Lynette Fromme had taken out a marriage license but never completed the ceremony. Hitler and Eva Braun were married only hours before their deaths. Soviet reports claim that she was pregnant at the time. Tradition has it that Mary Magdalene was pregnant at the time of Jesus' death, that she escaped Judea along with Mary and some others and ended her days somewhere in France where, presumably, there are living descendants of Jesus today. (Hitler, too, is reputed to have offspring in France by a French girl he knew as a soldier in World War One.)

Whether one is racist or not, there can be no question of Hitler's "Whites Only" policy. Most are clear enough on that Manson admitted only Whites into his circle. (Though one Jewess – Gypsy – was present and later was responsible for the scare that involved the Symbionese Liberation Front and a supposed attempt to break Manson out of jail.) Jesus had Simon the Canaanite. Hitler's organization included "honorary Aryans" like Milch and Eichmann. However, Jesus too made himself clear on the matter –

From Matthew, Chapter Ten, Verses 5 and 6, "These twelve Jesus sent forth, and commanded them, saying, Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not:"

"But go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel."

From Matthew, Chapter Fifteen, Verses 22 through 27, Jesus is responding to the pleadings of a Canaanite woman by saying, "I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel." And, "It is not meet to take the children's bread and cast it to the dogs."

Jesus furthermore instructed his disciples, "Behold, I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves: be ye therefore wise as serpents, and harmless as doves." (Matthew, Chapter Ten, Verse 16.)

This might even be a recollection of the Family and the exercises known as "creepy-crawls" designed by Manson as training in the application of stealth and applied non-violence. Violence could occur, however, as with the cutting off of the ear of Gary Hinman just as the ear was cut off one of those who had come to arrest Jesus.

The betrayal and persecution to come is alluded to in Matthew, Chapter Ten, Verses 21 through 23, "And the brother shall deliver up the brother to death, and the father the child: and the children shall rise up against their parents, and cause them to be put to death." As the saying goes, ripped from today's headlines. As the division and the struggle for men's souls penetrates down into homes and families, as loyalties are torn between God and the State. And what could possibly be a stronger divider than the issue of race?

"And ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake: but he that endureth to the end shall be saved." Times, names and places change. The truth does not change. But any name representing the truth – and certainly all those who bear it – may expect this kind of terror, which also does not change in its principle.

"But when they persecute you in this city, flee ye into another: for verily I say unto you, Ye shall not have gone over the cities of Israel, till the Son of man be come."

Something like this could only come about within the framework of an iron-clad, air-tight dictatorship situation wherein materialism rules and a bankruptcy of spirituality exists to where those who are truly seeking truth will do anything to find the answers and those committed to Mammon will, likewise, do anything to prevent any disturbance of their status quo.

Matthew, Chapter Seven, Verses 13 and 14, deals with the way to the truth. "Wide is the gate" and "broad is the way" to destruction. "Strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be who find it." Here you have what the Judeo-Christian, "One-Verse Charlies" base their hollow and empty "strait and narrow" on. It has absolutely nothing to do with their claim of walking some moralistic tight-rope through life. Rather, it indicates that any message reaching you through mainstream or popular channels or is in any way sanctioned by the prevailing system, cannot possibly be worth a single damn. This represents the "wide gate" of endless traps set up by the enemy media for the unwary to fall into. Then there is our message, suppressed, outlawed, slandered, ridiculed by the same enemy system. The "narrow gate". To bump into our message is so unlikely due to the conditions I just outlined as to be almost accidental.

No one among the people here today feels in any way compelled to deny the name of Jesus. That is simply because his enemies have succeeded over the past century or so in taking his name and his Church and perverting them into meaninglessness. Neutral. And, worse, favoring the agenda of the Satanic System. "Easy-believe." "Pie in the sky when you die." But, as for the names of Hitler and Manson, which hold the same, identical truth as that of Jesus in the beginning – RACE – they may have been vilified by the common enemy, just as Jesus first was, but not compromised. They are loaded with the proverbial dynamite.

"Howbeit no man spake openly of him for fear of the Jews." (John, Chapter Seven, Verse 13.)

Jesus' own answer to the moral weakness, ignorance and cowardice of the common masses: "But whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father which is in heaven." (Matthew, Chapter Ten, Verse 33.)

"When human hearts break and human souls despair, the great vanguishes of distress and care, of shame and misery, of spiritual slavery and physical duress look down upon them from the twilight of the past and hold out their eternal hands to fainthearted mortals. Woe to the people that is ashamed to grasp them!" Adolf Hitler writing in "Mein Kampf".

With popularity and success came the unwanted attention of the system. Hitler was the only one to have actually sought confrontation with an existing system and been able to actually throw it off in his own time and place. For Jesus and for Manson things escalated out of control and spiraled toward disaster.

Time and again Jesus admonished those he'd healed to keep quiet about it. And, just as with Manson, those who had had their being and their personality made whole again through meeting him couldn't resist the urge to shout it to the world about this fabulous individual. Susan Atkins gave the entire game away as she boasted of her exploits with Manson to one prostitute she was temporarily confined with. It has been speculated that Judas Iscariot did what he did out of an uncontrollable desire to force the hand of fate, as it were.

Manson's "crazy" act. Jesus and his parables. "Why speakest thou unto them in parables" "Because it is given unto you to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it is not given." "Therefore speak I unto them in parables: because they seeing see not; and hearing they hear not, neither do they understand." (Matthew, Chapter Thirteen, Verses 11 and 13.)

Manson's own words are more succinct, "No sense makes sense."

Still to this very day I catch on television some supposed "representative" of the racist movement on some panel with racial aliens, with a Jewish moderator, trying to "talk sense" in a milieu like that. I'm certain you've seen it too, more than once. It simply doesn't fly.

The people who knew them loved them. What each one stood for was also in the heart of each common individual. But the system decided they must be killed.

I quote at length this exchange between Jesus and his Jewish accusers from John, Chapter Eight, Verses 37 through 44, "I know that ye are Abraham's seed; but ye seek to kill me, because my word hath no place in you."

"I speak that which I have seen with my Father, and ye do that which ye have seen with your father."

"They answered and said unto him, Abraham is our father. Jesus saith unto them, If ye were Abraham's children, ye would do the words of Abraham."

"But now ye seek to kill me, a man that hath told you the truth, which I have heard of god: this did not Abraham."

"Ye do the deeds of your father. Then said they to him, We be not born of fornication; we have one father, even God."

"Jesus said unto them, If God were your father, ye would love me: For I proceeded forth and came from God; neither came I of myself, but he sent me."

"Why did ye not understand my speech? Even because ye cannot hear my word."

"Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: For he is a liar, and the father of it."

Finally, betrayal from within. Anytime the pressure is on, with the Satanic System holding all the gold and the perceived "authority" that gold buys, someone can be expected to crack or sell out sooner or later.

The "Generals' Plot" against Hitler on July 20th, 1944, as the Satanic forces of the "Allies" were closing in for the kill against Germany with a ring of fire and steel. Miserable cowards and weaklings sought to save themselves at the expense of the nation. Linda Kasabian who turned state's evidence in exchange for immunity and condemned Manson to the death sentence. And Judas Iscariot who sold Jesus out for thirty pieces of silver.

The mockery of the Nuremberg Trials, the circus at the Los Angeles County Court House, the so-called "trial" of Jesus. Each one a system showcase in the exact mold of the infamous Stalinist show trials of the 1930s. All illegal. All a travesty of actual justice. Each one a perfect microcosm of the spirit and the sentiment which overall guides the system itself. That of iniquity, hypocrisy and folly.

The scene on Calvary could best find its closest modern-day comparison by one's viewing the ghastly film footage of the scene in Milan, Italy, in April, 1945, where the bodies of the murdered Benito Mussolini, his mistress and some of his political associates were hung, upside-down, from the girders of a partially-constructed gas station. The work of the Communist "Red Star Brigade".

The same town where, only four months before, Mussolini had enjoyed one of his greatest receptions by the embattled Italian people. Such was the case also involving Jesus' own triumphal entry into Jerusalem for the Passover Feast. Quietly tucked away in the seething mobs must have been some of their terrified and broken-hearted supporters from happier days.

The unending vigil at the L.A. County Court House all throughout the longest trial in its history up to that time. The shaved heads of the women at the news of the death sentences handed down. The final orders of Hitler that his enemies should not "discover his body, faithfully carried out by his lieutenants. (The body claimed to be that of Hitler was in fact the double that they had found deposited on the Chancellery steps, rejected, buried, and then exhumed at Stalin's orders.)

Joseph of Arimathea managed to secure the body of the dead Jesus and placed it in the tomb which he had prepared for his own use later on. After the third day, the resurrected Jesus first manifested himself to the faithful women – including Mary Magdalene – who then spread the word to all the rest.

The Jews paid those guards who had been standing by the entrance of the tomb to spread the lie that it had been the disciples themselves who had stolen the body. Consider: Who or what would have a stake in attempting to deny or obscure the resurrection?

To this day they continue to spread the lie that Hitler abandoned his people to their fate and escaped Berlin alive. The story has been circulated that Jesus survived the cross and ended his days in Kashmir.

But one doubts whether the disciples would have gone on to endure the heightening horrors of Jewish terror and persecution had the resurrection not been real. Until that moment they had been cringing in terror, lost, disoriented, disheartened and beaten. Peter himself had even denied having ever known Jesus. Who would knowingly die for a lie?

From Acts, Chapter One, Verses 9, 10 and 11, "And when he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up, and a cloud received him out of their sight."

"And while they looked steadfastly toward heaven as he went up, behold, two men stood by them in white apparel;"

"Which also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven."

Part XI

"Before 1945, we were a party. After 1945, we were a religion." So spoke one former member of Adolf Hitler's N.S.D.A.P.

The terror was on full-scale. Spiritual and philosophical National Socialists (meaning anyone who was White and wanted to express themselves as White) had to operate so far underground that they were practically non-existent. The nation that had consistently voted over 90% approval for Hitler and his policies was now enemy-occupied and undergoing the most draconian "denazification" (meaning systematic persecution of its leading and best elements), helplessly, at the whim of the invading "Allies" which represented the Jewish Satanic System.

For purposes of continuing on despite the most horrendous of conditions and the despair that was practically universal, any symbolism might be utilized except the Swastika. And they might call themselves anything but National Socialist. It was just impossibly hot in the years immediately following World War Two.

It was much the same in Judea just after the crucifixion of Christ for those who would later be known as the early Christians. Scenes of atrocity were routinely being committed in the streets by the Jews and their allies of that day – more duped Whites – now that Jesus was gone and whatever organization as may once have existed had been broken. Just as many Germans left for South America, many of these early Christians left for Europe.

The earliest Christians used as their symbol a disguised hydrogen atom (two inter-locking circles), with only that part where the two circles connected in evidence. You still can see it on bumper stickers today. People think it is a "fish". That's not the remarkable part. How did anyone of two thousand years ago know about such things as atoms or their geometric design?

Afterward, of course, they adopted that version of the cross ever since associated exclusively with Christianity. We know that the instrument of the crucifixion was anything but that formation – either a "T" or a single upright – and that the cross in its many forms is the oldest symbol known to mankind.

Over here in the Fifties and Sixties, and even beyond, it was a veritable blizzard of sunwheels, Celtic crosses, lightning bolts, various characters of the Runic alphabet, etc. The Swastika itself was considered "off limits" for any but the suicidal (or, to some minds, government agents provocateur) in the remaining atmosphere of hysteria whipped up by the Jewish media to facilitate their illegalities against their opponents.

Was Jesus' ministry during his own lifetime then a "religion"? Hardly. It was action all the way. And not just action but only the kind of action born of dire necessity. The living Word. All of it as the direct extension of one extraordinary personality. When he died, it died. And something else, however much dedicated to his memory, arose in its place. This is the church-building phase.

Since 1945, the clamor has only escalated for Nazi relics and souvenirs. Many of the same factories that were manufacturing them during the Third Reich have been and still are grinding them out to supply the demand. A collector in this field today must take great care not to get stuck with a worthless "repro". And for the past two thousand years there has been a similar fascination for Christian relics. How many phonies of these are there?

In taking up the Acts of the Apostles and the Epistles of Saint Paul, am I to presuppose to interpret the interpretations of others as to the doctrine and works of someone else? Hollow words are not my forte. I know that while the gospels galvanized and electrified Europe into, first, being able to resist the soon-to-materialize assaults from Asia and Africa and, second, to rebound and reconquer once again the planet just as prophesied in the Old Testament, great flaws existed which quickly led the way to the spiritual and philosophical junk-heap we see it as today.

Five hundred years after the book closed on the Old Testament, Jesus came to revitalize the message of the truth. One thousand, eight hundred and eighty-nine years later, Adolf Hitler came into the world to do it again – even on a far grander scale. There was nothing in between except the impetus begun by Jesus' advent. Only after the prophecies had been fulfilled – except the very final one – and Western Civilization had ceased its forward momentum, then beginning to decline from within, did Adolf Hitler appear.

Hitler's complete victory would have forestalled the Apocalypse, nothing less than that. However, nothing could have had any hope of altering that which had already been written. Jesus' complete victory would have done the same thing. But, along with his coming, his crucifixion also was clearly prophesized in the Old Testament. So then, Hitler's work, just as he himself knew and stated, could only be seen as the final, preparatory work just before the Day of the Lord. The loss of the Second World War was a sacrifice that had to be made, just as Jesus knew his own sacrifice was to be.

Saul of Tarsus, later to become Paul, was a loyal and highly responsible "Jew" – meaning he clung fast to the prevailing religion, moral and social code of his time and place. Such monumental confusion over this as persists today ensues from the simple fact that right there, in the Roman province of Judea, every citizen was considered a "Jew" in the same sense that everyone here in this place today is considered an "American", regardless of race, etc. Paul takes great pains in two of his letters to point out that he is a Benjamite, of the Tribe of Benjamin, and, therefore, a "pure Jew". But these very Benjamites were the Galileans, later the Visigoths, later Vikings, still later Normans. They were the racial antithesis of the Canaanites then in the majority as "Jews" and today exclusively "the Jews". Such confusion has wreaked general havoc upon man's understanding ever since.

In his professional life he served his legitimate Roman masters faithfully and diligently. His job was to persecute Christians or, as we may be certain that was not the terminology attaching to his job description, to "deal with dangerous subversives and extremists", enemies of the State, of the system of that day. He simply didn't know. Such is the case with most of the best of our own professional class today and it is upon their backs that the Satanic System rides. No one wants to doubt the established authority under which they were born and raised. No one wants to be found outside of their own society and traditions. It is not within the White man's nature to be thus. And this is a tremendous tool which our enemies have so successfully wielded against us, especially over the past century.

But without Paul, the expertise he displayed in his professional life, his miraculous conversion, his subsequent work and his ultimate martyrdom, it may be speculated that all of Jesus' work may have been lost right there at the start.

George Lincoln Rockwell represented the crême, the natural aristocracy of American society in the first half of the Twentieth Century. A "Judeo-Christian" in the same sense as Paul had been a "Jew". In 1941, Rockwell left college and joined the U.S. Navy to go fight "fascism" in accordance with the noblest instincts of a White man loyal to his people and his country, one among millions who had been so thoroughly and diabolically lied to by the Jewish manipulators of the media. He and the rest were DUPED into going to war against Germany by these Satanic masters of the lie.

First helping to destroy Axis submarines in the Atlantic and then leading the air support in the retaking of Guam island in the Pacific, Rockwell performed his duty with distinction.

But as soon as the "victory" was sealed in 1945, Rockwell began to sense that, as he put it, everything he had been fighting for was being handed to the Communists. While at home the very foundation of everything that he had loved and risked his life for was coming under attack, being undermined by "our own" government. He did the responsible thing and entered conservative politics. Very soon he was introduced to the key Jewish role in all of this. Esau, Edom, Idumea of the Bible – now wearing the new disguises of Marxism and Zionism, and of Communism and Capitalism.

He secured and read a copy of Adolf Hitler's masterwork, "Mein Kampf", and was instantly converted.

Never rash or irresponsible, he continued to maintain his conservative approach initially even as a National Socialist, naturally wanting to keep intact his professional life as well as his marriage and family. But it was never possible to serve two masters and, as Paul pointed out, if one is to have a wife, he'll want to please her and this will get in the way of doing the Lord's work.

In July of 1958, Rockwell and a handful of followers staged the first openly anti-Jewish demonstration since the close of World War Two in front of the Eisenhower White House. Under no illusions as to how he'd be treated by the Jewish-dominated media, Rockwell deliberately chose the name American Nazi Party in March of 1959 under which to operate henceforth. No more sneaking around, no more denials, no more cringing before a vicious and tyrannical enemy. No more kidding one's self that the job could be done through half-measures, much less that the Jews could thus be fooled.

The movement consensus everywhere was that to do what Rockwell had just done would result in instantaneous physical annihilation. Such was the power of the Jews – or such was the perception of their power due to the hysteria – among every segment, every stratum of the population then.

The irony? The people in their hearts supported what Rockwell stood for, except they had no idea what its name was. They were as upset and dismayed as he was at the sight of their traditions being trampled under by what they supposed to be "their own" leaders. But the name of all of their values, codified as it was into a militant movement, had been vilified by the very same people's own worst, mortal enemy – who was in control of their government and media – and they had been misled into believing they should hate it. The work of the Jews, the work of Satan.

But – the silence had at least been shattered, the darkness had been penetrated.

Had Rockwell succeeded in awakening and uniting American Whites and over-throwing the enemy system anywhere along the line, again, the Apocalypse would have been avoided. And again, such a thing could never be. Because the ending is written. It is written because it has already happened, in the future, in another time dimension.

Instead, a monumental campaign of smear on the one hand and black-out on the other hand went instantly into effect against Rockwell and all his efforts. Rabbi S. Andhill Fineberg officially announced the press quarantine. The people were not to be allowed to know that genuine White leadership existed for them. What it was to be represented as to them was something not to in any remote sense resemble the truth of the matter.

Regardless, one had to play it according to Hitler's outline in "Mein Kampf": We don't ask whether a task is even possible; if it is right, proper and necessary, we approach it as though it is fully possible. And here we see one more manifestation of Jesus' concept of "faith the size of a mustard seed." that is capable of moving mountains.

Things had to be adjusted now for this new faith which Rockwell intended should embrace all White people of the world. In like manner, Paul had to take the gospel to the "Gentiles". No longer for Germans alone, the faith was for all of White, Western Civilization. Exactly as with the new Christianity no longer being reserved for "Jews" who were of solid, White stock, it now was intended for those "lost sheep" in Europe that Jesus spoke of... the "Gentiles".

For the next nine years Rockwell organized and traveled incessantly, crisscrossing the United States, making forays into Canada, Ireland and England, conducting demonstrations, setting up new local units, addressing college audiences, publishing his own works which defined the new "church".

Repeatedly arrested, he never could be effectively imprisoned by the system. On August 25th, 1967, he was assassinated near his headquarters in Arlington, Virginia. One "Judas" or "Oswald" type was apprehended and convicted of the crime but the larger conspiracy behind the assassination still remains a mystery, clouded in speculation.

Did Paul suppose he was going to overthrow or supplant the Roman Empire – least of all become "Caesar" himself through his efforts? Hardly. The reality of the situation must be properly appreciated. The seeds must be sown even as events themselves take care of the rest. That is the task only. Temporal power? Exactly as the name implies: Temporary.

What today is called the movement did, during Rockwell's lifetime, in its segmented state, attack and condemn him – partially in vain attempt to cover themselves from the same fury he was receiving from the Jews and partially out of sheer professional jealousy as they, by their indirect tactics, were faring no better than he was by standing forth openly as a National Socialist.

But no one, nothing, could have affected anything against the system. No one could wrest control, or will wrest control, of the steering wheel away from the hand of Death who is at the helm. Such is the way it is written.

However, in the ensuing decades, Rockwell's message of the unity of all Whites ("love one another as I have loved you.") and the expulsion of Jewish influence over them ("the children of the Devil") has come to permeate the movement in spite of itself the way it now exists. The seeds now being sown are all of the same kind. And events are indeed taking care of the rest.

"I knew I would not live to see the victory I would make possible but that I would not die before I had made that victory certain." So said Rockwell in 1961 in his autobiography, "This Time the World".

The faith, the truth, the name for it, the vehicle for it, the focus of it: National Socialism. The eternal symbol: The cross? The hooked cross, the Swastika.

They can attack it but they can't compromise it. This is its final form. Incorruptible.

It's only up to us now to hold to it, withstand, endure. Until the Apocalypse comes.

Adolf Hitler, 1938

Part XII

The Revelation of Saint John the Divine. This is the one it seems that most people lately like to try their hand at interpreting – unfortunately, most of the time, from a perspective of bottomless ignorance or, worse, with a determination to force it to conform to their own brand of superstitious Judeo-Christian error. I'll add my own version here to see how it stacks up against all the rest.

John – the last of the disciples and the only one to die a natural death. Imprisoned by the Romans on the Greek island of Patmos in his old age. In this regard he shares certain similarities with Rudolf Hess, Hitler's deputy and the one to whom Hitler had dictated "Mein Kampf" while both men were imprisoned at Landsberg in 1924. Hess, were we to employ Biblical terms to his relationship to Hitler, would have been his scribe. Condemned to life in prison in 1946, he ultimately was murdered in prison in 1987, a man then in his nineties.

John had written the "stand-out" gospel, the one so very different from the other three "synoptics". Now approximately eighty years of age, he may have been enjoying his Sabbath day, possibly relieved of his toil by the Romans, and might have been strolling the beach. It had been as a teenager that he had first heeded the call of Jesus of Nazareth and spent the next three tumultuous years at his side.

The tale of his wild aspiration to be secretary of state within Jesus' new government-to-be in Judea so reminds me of ourselves in this movement during the 1960s when it was Rockwell's motto that, "The Jews Are Through In '72!"

Rockwell's quote given in the previous segment tended to demonstrate however that he knew the real score and that the limited physical and political goals were intended strictly for the rest of us who at that time didn't – couldn't – fully understand.

In his opening words to the seven churches in and around Asia Minor – peopled as it was at the time by the very Galatians, or Celtic Whites, that Paul addressed one of his letters to – John speaks of never losing the electric feeling of that very first love. I fully know what he meant. That new discovery and sense of excitement when it seems that anything is possible and magic is in the air so thick you can cut it with a knife.

Humble circumstances and impossible odds meant nothing alongside the pure energy and verve of being so fully alive and aware. We were then operating with card files and rubber stamps, exactly as Hitler had done in the beginning, with "the treasury in a cigar box". I always loved the story of how Hermann Goering's first office had been located in an unused bathroom, his desk being a sink covered with a few boards. But, despite anything, we knew we couldn't lose.

To witness and experience the heights, then to bear the tragedies. Betrayals, abandonments, disappointments, the deaths of old associates, and prison. Still, that romance which is second to none. Just as Hitler referred to the birth of his own N.S.D.A.P., "the greatest romance ever known." Without question, even by the deliberately grotesque and avowedly hostile system accounts of those three fantastic years of the Manson Family, it must have been much the same – worth it all.

Then John's recollections are suddenly interrupted when he is visited by his old friend and mentor whom he hasn't seen in sixty years, not since following the crucifixion and prior to the ascension. Just as he hadn't initially recognized him then, neither did he at first recognize him now and was at first petrified with fright.

But just as with the last time, half a century before, when the apparition partook of solid food, etc., it was known that this was a real and physical event. And you should already know what this suggests to me: "Beam me up, Scotty." Pointless for me to reproduce here John's description of this experience. Go and read it for yourself.

Then John was instructed to write down the vision he was about to be given.

Before launching into what he was shown, he delivers this paragraph, Chapter Two, Verse 9, to the seven churches, "I know thy works, and tribulation, and poverty (but thou art rich) and I know the blasphemy of them which say they are Jews, and are not, but are the synagogue of Satan."

How could the foregoing possibly be overlooked or misinterpreted? But it is.

Previously I've written a piece on the dynamics of the persecution syndrome as it is a subject in itself. How broadly instructive it is just to know where it arises from and against whom and what it is directed and why. Some of this I have already covered again, in this article, so I won't go into it here at length.

People are correct only in that Revelation describes the end of the age. As with all else, that much isn't sufficient by itself. One needs to understand WHY.

All those mistaken ones, those laboring falsely in error smugly believing that they'll be alright just by being modern-day Pharisees in good standing – "Judeo-Christians" – saved by the so-called "rapture". What garbage!

Some actually are convinced that the Apocalypse may yet be avoided through still more insane, liberal give-away efforts poured out on the denizens of the Third World. More garbage.

As I have stressed all throughout this series, it doesn't count one single damn whether you have succeeded in psyching yourself out totally if it all is based in a bogus lie. You can fool yourself and others – but not "the man upstairs." This is not some happy crap. This is real, serious, physical and technological business. I've expressed my conviction already that the only way the end could have been foretold is for those space-farers with the power to move through dimensions of time to have seen it. In other words, it's already happened!

It would be one thing to miss that element of quantum physics. It is certainly another to continue right on – again, as I've stressed – blindly, stubbornly pouring more gasoline on the already out-of-control fire. The "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" are sent by God expressly to make an end to the hellish mess that these insane, Satanic policies have made of the world. Indeed, when Malthus promulgated his own, scientific view of how the age of overpopulation would find its end nearly two centuries ago, little did he realize that someone would have beaten him to it two thousand years prior.

Rudolf Hess

Can't you see that if these policies of "equality" and "humanitarianism", etc., which have already succeeded in turning the world into an open sewer, should be sacred and dear to your heart, and should you hope and strive to somehow maintain this impossible and damnable mess via more of the same means, you stand foursquare in defiance of God himself?

Remember: No political solution. Remember: The Malthusian Limit. Aryans account for less than 10% of the total world population. Aside from their being imminently threatened with extinction through absorption by the Brown bio-mass, the very atmosphere and environment itself gasps, about to collapse – or to rebel. Either way: The Horsemen.

Fools and liars endlessly point the finger at who may be the culprit to fire the first shot that will ignite "World War Three" in order to play out what they take to be that part of Revelation. All blindness and stupidity.

They pray for "peace" and no end to the current trends. A "Soylent Green" planet, packed cheek-by-jowl with mud people who may happen to be "good Christians". Is that the idea? Some "crazy person" – according to them, a Saddam Hussein, perhaps – to malevolently spoil all this idyllic fun by triggering a nuclear war? How tragic. An "Anti-Christ" all tailor-made by and for this media to pillory even while the business of Babylon the Great goes on as usual. Sure. You bet.

People prattle on about the new technology now in existence which would literally enable one to "receive the mark of the beast", without which no one may buy or sell. And yet no one makes the inescapable conclusion and recognizes that this so-called "New World Order" IS the very Beast System itself! Absolutely amazing!

In the United States we are living in the very heart of the Beast. The "Synagogue of Satan." literally owns and operates the place. What could be clearer? That is what John is trying to tell us with his riddle about "666": He refers to the eighteen times the accursed Canaanite tribes are mentioned in the Old Testament before the first appearance of the word "Jew" in Second Kings, Chapter Sixteen, Verse 6. These Canaanites evolved into Jews and now control the planet. But listen to any of the other garbage explanations of what 666 means.

What ought to be clear is the way millions of people fail to see themselves as active, supportive parts of this very same Beast System. The "wage slaves". Are you one? Try not being one and see if you may still buy or sell. It only stands to reason that if people could SEE IT then it couldn't take place. And there you have the critical role of lies and deception.

Money. It's all about money. "Filthy lucre" itself is a tangible lie, as yet still universally accepted as the standard of exchange but for a long time now worth nothing in itself, only backed by the "promise" of the Beast System. The lifeblood of a system based on and made up of lies. John placed great emphasis on the merchants of the world bewailing the sudden death of "Babylon the Great". The same reference is right here, right now. Manson spoke of the day when, "the money won't spend." Even I, according to my own poor devices – well before any of this came to me – could see that it was the system's economy that was key to all.

But why else fear the Apocalypse?

This global situation is set to implode on its own – the logical consequence of flouting the laws of nature and of physics (or, if you prefer, the laws of God himself.) This will come as only the fitting culmination of everything the "New World Order" has represented and struggled for. Only a just reward. If you stand with the Satanic System, this will be bad news for you. If you stand opposed to the Satanic System, then you can hardly wait.

To be on hand for the final end of all this evil and hypocrisy, to have the hope that it will not succeed in outliving you. That is everything. To lose one's life in the process of that is nothing. One of the chief among the "One-Verse Charlies" devoted an entire, thick best-selling volume to his take on Revelation and never once mentioned its single most outstanding feature: The New Jerusalem.

John vividly describes a geometric cube approaching earth from space, measuring a thousand, four hundred miles square. (Revelation, Chapter Twenty-One, Verses 10 through 23.) Something which amounts to an artificial planet. The size of it would be somewhat smaller than that of earth's moon and some have guessed that it has never at any time been far away, concealed in an outer crust that man has known as the moon. The name of it is "New Jerusalem", or "The Lord Is There".

If you would discount extraterrestrials and U.F.O.s, then you must also discount John. If you reject racialism, then you must reject the Bible and its core principle. Best then go in search of a fantasy that more suits your own liking, or, as they say, "the church of your choice".

It's as easy and simple as one, two, three: For the first time ever, the Satanic System has seized control over the entire globe, politically, militarily, economically, culturally, spiritually and in every other way; For the first time since the fall of man, the technology in human hands approaches the level of "the gods" themselves; And, for the first time ever, due to the two items just covered, God's own people – Israel, or the White race – has no place left on earth to retire to for safety or sovereignty from alien influences. Put that with the threatening collapse of the eco-system and, if you choose, the rash of U.F.O. incidents since the end of World War Two and tally it all up.

The devastating war that is to come, as described more by Ezekiel than by John? When "Gog and Magog" come against Israel with a numberless army, then God will move in directly with ultimate slaughter against them. That will be the Battle of Armageddon. Who is this Gog-Magog mentioned in connection with the end times both by Ezekiel, Chapter 38, Verses 2 and 3, and by John in Revelation, Chapter Twenty, Verse 8? Obviously not the Soviet Union as was once claimed.

The colored masses of the Third World certainly have to represent his army which numbers greater than the sand of the sea. But who is their leader?

When I first heard the theory that Gog-Magog of the Bible was, in fact, the Khazar Empire known to the history of the Middle Ages, it right away snapped into place as only making the most perfect sense. A quick cross check as to both in an edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica from the early years of the Twentieth Century confirmed it definitively.

This hither-Asiatic realm rested between the Black and the Caspian Seas in what was later southern Russia. In the Middle Ages it converted en masse to Judaism. Then it was scattered by invading Turks. But the people remain and are known today as the Ashkenazic Jews. They are

Hermann Goering

80% of all the Jews of the world. It is they who control the world. It is they who are leading the Whites to their doom. It is they who represent the allegorical "Satan". The Sephardic, or Canaanite Jews take a back seat to them.

Should anyone have a more plausible or logical interpretation of Revelation or of the entire Bible for that matter, I'd like to hear it.

In the summer of 1995, at the time of the first of my three visits to the Pueblo County Jail where the initial draught of these words was penned in the winter of 1997, I was attending weekly meetings of the volunteer Gideons. It was at that time that, among many other things, it dawned over me exactly what was meant by "the Holy Spirit". Higher awareness struggling toward the perfect.

In that sense then, may the Holy Spirit now be with you.
